THREE things that Mexico need—ed it has now measurably attained—political stability and opportunity for the people, and attention to business. One more thing it needs. That is foreign capital. It can get that only on capitalist terms.

There are many arguments in favor of socialism, and many earnest people believe in them. But one thing socialism cannot do. That is to serve as bankable security for capitalist loans or investments in a capitalist world. They who choose the socialist road of society must do so without capital help from the capitalist part of the world.

THIS is not mere theory. It translates itself into very practical fact. Mexico announces an impracticable political principle.

Those who invest in Mexico must do so under Mexican law, and have exactly the rights of Mexican investors. This is "fair" enough. But business is not enough. The capitalist world has certain standards of the inviolability of property. To land is property, and ownership of it is ownership.

If Mexico chooses to make land ownership a revocable privilege, subject to recall by political authority, it is fair to apply the same principle to native and foreign investors alike. But the result will be that foreign investors will stay at home, where they do not have to take that risk, or else will demand profits large enough to cover the risk.

The capital development of Mexico depends absolutely on the confidence of the capitalists of the world that they will receive, not merely "fair," but capitalist treatment.

FORTUNATELY, the new regime in Mexico bids fair to meet even this condition. It is in a difficult dilemma. The distribution of the large estates of Mexico among the people is a political and economic problem. We would be doing the same thing in this country, too, if we had the same situation.

To do this involves some modification of the orthodox conception of the inviolability of property. And, to do this, means doing it in a way that will not offend the foreign-owned property. Which is precisely what foreign investors will not risk. So, on the surface, it seems that any Mexican government must choose between justice to Mexicans or security to foreigners. But they want is practical security. And the Mexican government wishes to give them that security.

Where there's a will, there's a way. A great undeveloped country lies at our doors, calling for our capital and offering profits. A little good will on both sides is rapidly making it a sound business proposition, also.

SHANGHAI is parading a dozen bandits a day through Nanking Road, and then hanging them at the Lung Wha arsenal outside the town. There are 180 on the present list, so the show will last some time. The people seem to enjoy it, even the bandits do not particularly object.

Death is a relatively minor evil, and life presents many greater ones. The prison in which they have been incarcerated, in their case, is a hell. So the holiday goes on; the bandit population is slightly decreased, and, beyond this, not much happens.

It is the Chinese way, and, in their present stage of development, perhaps an unavoidable one. We, more advanced, are one stage ahead of it. We lock up our prisoners more humanely, and hang fewer of them, and do not make a show of those we do hang. But will we really civilized successors, looking back, be much more shocked at the Chinese way than at ours?

Delegates from 40 Nations Are For Disarmament

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—Two resolutions pledging the parliamentary representatives of 40 nations to work for international disarmament were quickly adopted by the Inter-Parliamentary union meeting here today.

The first resolution, proposed by Brig. Gen. E. L. Spears, Great Britain, provides that the League of Nations should be asked to take the initiative in demilitarizing frontier zones of bordering nations, and that the union itself work for such a reciprocal agreement.

A second resolution, proposed by Dr. P. Munch, former minister of defense for Denmark, emphasized the need of general reduction of armament and creates a permanent union commission for study of various plans.

Assurances of Great Britain and Japan for co-operation in immediate disarmament were given to the Inter-Parliamentary union today by delegates representing the two nations.

Trades Legal Work for Dance Lessons

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 6.—Daniel Riordan, Pasadena attorney, trades his legal services for dancing lessons, according to testimony in Judge Summerfield's court here.

Riordan appeared as counsel for Mrs. Bessie Herrin, seeking alimony from Edward Herrin.

"I paid her lawyer's fee," Herrin testified. "He took it out in trade."

"What kind of trade?" asked the judge.

"I gave him dancing lessons," Riordan admitted he had taken the lessons.

LOSS OF EYE IS CAUSE OF DAMAGE SUIT

Mustel Seeks $50,000 As Balm for Injuries Suffered in Fistic Battle

CIVIL ACTION IS FILED

Goetze to Face Trial on Mayhem Charge Soon in Judge Z. B. West's Court

MORE FUEL was added to the flame of the Mustel-Goetze feud at yesterday, when Samuel J. Mustel, who lost his left eye in a recent fistic battle with Karl R. Goetze, his neighbor, filed suit in superior court for $50,000 damages.

The civil action comes on the heels of a criminal court prosecution of Goetze, who is facing a charge of mayhem as a result of Mustel's disfigurement. Goetze's trial is scheduled for October 15 before a jury in Superior Judge Z. B. West's court.

In the damage suit against Goetze, Mustel demands $50,000 as actual damages for the loss of his eye, and $15,000 exemplary damages. The Santa Ana law firm of Head, Ruten and Scott has been retained as counsel for Mustel. It is understood that Goetze will be represented by Attorney Arthur E. Koepsel, of Orange, who is defending him in the criminal proceedings.

FEUD BEGAN LONG AGO

History of the feud, so far as court records are concerned, dates back to August 12, the day of the memorable "rough and tumble" fight between the two neighbors on the public highway, west of Orana. The real beginning of the feud, however, is said to go a year or so beyond the incident of the clash.

Mustel, who is director of music in the Santa Ana city schools, lives at 2033 North Main street, next door to Goetze. Both reside within the city limits of Orange.

Goetze is a musician and a poultry and pigeons.

Mustel claims that his trouble originated with a difficulty over membership in the Ku Klux Klan, which organization rejected his application for membership. Goetze, following Mustel's rejection, sought to force Mustel to join the Klan's auxiliary organization for women.

Goetze was said to be an active klanman.

VERSIONS ARE DIFFERENT

His version of the breach is different. He claims that he earned the enmity of Mustel when he interfered with a beating that he says Mustel was administering to Scott Mustel. The Mustels both scout this story.

For many months, at any rate, the neighbors were at "outs." The breach widened when Mr. and Mrs. Henry LeBlanc, of Ventura, came to visit their relatives, the Mustels, last August. Mrs. LeBlanc and Mrs. Mustel are sisters. The LeBlancs had formerly been friendly with Goetze, but shunned him while at the Mustel home, it was said.

Goetze, it seems, desired to give his version of the situation to the LeBlancs. When they started to drive home from the Mustel place on August 12, he followed them in his car, overtaking them near a fruit stand on the state highway, half a mile west of Orana.

Seeing Goetze following their relatives disturbed Mr. and Mrs. Mustel and they followed in their car. They also followed in their car. They also followed in their car. They also followed in their car.

From that point, the issues are in dispute. Mustel and Goetze each claim that the other was the aggressor. Goetze is offering the only possible defense to the mayhem charge, which is a plea of self defense. The Mustels and LeBlancs testified in court that Goetze advanced around the car upon Mustel and struck him several blows, all landing on the same spot, the left eye. In presenting her view that Mustel was far from being aggressor in the fray, Mrs. LeBlanc went so far as to brand her brother-in-law as a coward.

"He just put up his hands and cried 'mamma' when I struck him," Mrs. LeBlanc said.

Justice K. E. Morrison held Goetze to trial on the mayhem charge and he was required to deposit heavy bail for his appearance in court.

Subsequently Mustel's eye, the sight of which had been destroyed, was removed by surgeons.

PB-1 Seaplane Again Is Forced Down

ASTORIA, Ore., Oct. 6.—The naval seaplane PB-1 was forced down on Willapa Harbor, Wn., late yesterday, a short time after leaving the Columbia river for Seattle, according to fragmentary advice received here.

A broken gasoline line was given as the cause. The PB-1 was forced to land here a week ago, while on her way from San Francisco to Seattle. A new engine was installed and she left again for the north yesterday noon.

HARBOR BOND ELECTION SET FOR APRIL 7

Expected action of the county supervisors in calling the $1,200,000 Newport Harbor bond election for next April 7 was taken today.

The board, just before the noon recess, adopted an ordinance prepared by District Attorney A. P. Nelson, setting the election date and designating the two bond proposals of $500,000 for harbor entrance improvement and $500,000 for inside development. The ordinance also prescribed the denomination of the bonds and provided that they should be fully retired in 20 years.

The ordinance has been in preparation and under consideration for several weeks.

GERMANY MAY BALK ON PACTS

LOCARNO, Switzerland, Oct. 6.—Although a Rhineland security pact is almost assured, German signatures to arbitration treaties with Belgium, Poland and Czechoslovakia may be difficult to obtain.

Delegates to the security conference learned today that Germany intends to demand large concessions in the secondary phases of the conference.

This came as a shock, since yesterday's opening session gave many a willingness to negotiate the Rhineland pact along the lines of her note of February 9 had imparted a spirit of optimism.

Germany will demand two principal concessions, German markets over her former colonies and improved conditions in the Saar valley, in Danzig and along her eastern frontier, in exchange for her signatures to the arbitration treaties, recognition of the right of foreign troops to cross her soil, as is provided for in Article 16 of the League of Nations' covenant, and entrance into the League of Nations.

The morning meeting of the conference today was postponed because of sudden illness of Foreign Minister Gustav Stresemann, who was taken to his bed last evening with a sore throat and slight fever, probably due to change in climate.

After breakfast today, Stresemann said he had recovered sufficiently to attend the afternoon session.

Disabled Vessel Limp Into Port

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 6.—The coast guard patrol boat No. 101 limped back to her base here early today, after radio stations up and down the coast had suspended broadcasting and a score of vessels had turned toward her assistance.

The vessel, carrying a crew of 12, was able to come home under her own power, but the CO-183 stood by to render assistance if it should be necessary.

3 AIRMEN ESCAPE DEATH AS BURNING ARMY PLANE FALLS 4000 FEET TO EARTH

(By United Press)

DES MOINES, Ia., Oct. 6.—Hurling earthward from an altitude of 4000 feet, the motor of their airplane afire and trailing tongues of flame and smoke until the falling craft resembled some shooting meteor, three army aviators miraculously escaped death by retaining their presence of mind.

The flyers brought their plane to a safe landing in a cornfield near Fort Des Moines army post after one of the most thrilling peace-time experiences in the history of aviation.

Those aboard when the motor burst into flames were Lt. A. E. Montgomery, Chief Machinist Chamberlain and Aviation Mate Kidder. In the air mail route across the continent from San Diego to New York, where they were to compete in the Pulitzer trophy races.

Although the accident occurred last night, army men did not reveal the story of the fall until today.

Reid Sends Telegram on Behalf of Air Critic to Soldiers' Meet in Omaha

OMAHA, Neb., Oct. 6.—Col. William Mitchell, unable to attend the American Legion convention here because of court-martial proceedings in Washington, today telegraphed his former "buddies," asking them to aid him in his fight for a separate air department.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 6.—An appeal to the American Legion convention to aid in defending Col. William Mitchell, in court-martial proceedings brought against him for insubordination, was made today by Representative Frank Reid, Republican, of Illinois, head of Mitchell's civilian counsel.

In a telegram to the Legion convention in Omaha, which is held today to President Coolidge, Reid urged the American Legion to appoint a committee of lawyers to assist Mitchell in the military trial.

Reid also asked the Legion to supply witnesses and certain evidence which he said it now possessed.

Desire For More Pay

The desire for an increase in pay and rank is responsible for the agitation for a separate air corps in the navy, Lt. Donald M. Carpenter, naval air station, Pensacola, Fla., charged today before the special air board.

"Some sponsors of the corps plan," Carpenter said, "hope to return to the command higher in the ranks."

Carpenter said there was "general dissatisfaction" in the entire naval establishment because of the existing rule which forces unwilling retirement and transfers.

Operations of the air service, he said, should be conducted in close co-operation with the other branches of the navy.

Carpenter was emphatic in opposing the separate corps plan, but did not definitely state how he believed the air should be operated.

Lt. Wallace M. Dillon, of the bureau of aeronautics, followed Carpenter on the stand. He advocated the separate corps plan.

Will Hold Joint Sessions

To insure completion of its work the end of next week, the president's special air board today ordered evening sessions for the remainder of its inquiry.

Thursday morning, five members of the board will "take off" to obtain first-hand information on army air operations. Chairman Morrow, Howard Coffin, Senator Bingham, Republican, Connecticut, Representative Parker, Republican, New York; and Maj. Gen. George Harbord, retired, will fly from here to Mitchell field, Long Island, to witness the international air races. They will ride in a nine-passenger Douglas transport plane.

RENO, Nev., Oct. 6.—An inquest will be held here today over the bodies of W. K. Smith and F. Kummer, engineer and fireman, killed last night when a westbound Southern Pacific limited collided with a freight train between Reno and Sparks.

Eight passengers were treated here for minor injuries.

The limited ran over an open switch into the standing freight. Smith and Kummer were in the cab of the locomotive of the limited. Both lived at Sparks.

OMAHA, Oct. 6.—Led, for the first time in his seven years' existence, by a president of the United States, the annual American Legion Parade, 100,000 strong, swung through the streets of Omaha this afternoon.

President and Mrs. Coolidge closely guarded by secret service agents, rode in an automobile at the head of a six-mile parade.

The sun, hidden throughout the morning by bleak clouds, broke through a few minutes before the parade started and brought countless thousands of persons milling about the line of march.

Cannon Boom Greeting Amid the Cheers of Massed Thousands, President Calvin Coolidge Arrived Here at 8:30 a. m., today, to address the annual convention of the American Legion.

A cold drizzling rain fell from a bleak sky, but failed to dampen the enthusiasm of thousands of Legionnaires and residents of Omaha who crowded the union station to greet the presidential party.

As the train which brought the chief executive, Mrs. Coolidge and their guests 1800 miles from Washington drew into the station, 21 guns of the ninth field artillery roared out the national salute.

Troops Line Streets

The president and Mrs. Coolidge made their way from the train to waiting automobiles through lines of U. S. troops escorted by an official reception committee, which included Gen. James A. DRAIN, commander of the Legion; Gov. George McMillen, of Nebraska; Chief of Staff John L. Hines and five national Legion past commanders.

Through streets fully decorated and solidly lined with Nebraskaans, and the compliment paid to them by the president, who made the longest trip of his White House tenancy to come here, and Jaunt Legionnaires, before whom he is the first president to speak, Mr. Coolidge and the first lady were then driven to the home of Walter W. Head, president of the Omaha National bank and former president of the American Bankers' association, to await the hour for the presidential address to the veterans.

12 Autos in Procession

Twelve automobiles were in the procession to the Head home, the president in the first motor, accompanied by General DRAIN. Behind followed other members of the presidential party, high officials of the Legion, the reception committee, Admiral Conitt, late commander of the U. S. fleet; Major General Lejeune, of the Marines and other high army and navy officials.

President Coolidge arrived at the auditorium at 10:25 a. m. He was escorted immediately to the platform, where he was greeted with thunderous cheers.

The crowd outside heard his address through loud speakers installed at almost every corner in the business district.

President Coolidge concluded his speech at 11:25 a. m. He left the platform amid a thunderous din and was driven to the Omaha club for luncheon.

Cheers for First Lady

The deafening ovation accorded Mrs. Coolidge as she stepped forward was no less deafening when Mrs. Coolidge joined him at the call of the convention.

Deep silence penetrated the auditorium as the president began his speech. Three amplifiers magnified his quiet voice and carried it to the hoots of five broadcasting stations.

ORANGE COUNTY REALTY MEN IN AUTO CARAVAN

Approximately 50 Orange county realtors and their wives left this morning, at 4 o'clock, for Fresno, where the annual state convention of the California Real Estate association will be held for three days, starting tomorrow. At Van Nuys, they joined with realtors from all parts of the Southland in forming an automobile caravan.

Carl Mock, prominent local broker, and a director of the association is one of the caravan lieutenants. Leaving Van Nuys, the realtors planned to eat lunch at the Kern County fair, in Bakersfield, and then proceed by way of Delano, Porterville, Visalia, Dinuba and Salem.

The 24-piece Santa Monica municipal band is heading the Southland caravan. Local realtors will take an active part in the convention. Freeman H. Bloodgood, first real estate commissioner, is scheduled to give two talks. Frank Pope, a vice president of the association, will preside at one of the luncheon meetings.

Horace Fine, veteran Register reporter, accompanied the realtors north for the purpose of "covering" the convention for this paper.

The case of James L. Davis, Santa Ana attorney, charged with practicing law without obtaining a city license, which was scheduled to come up in Judge J. F. Talbot's court at 10 a. m. today, was postponed until 10 o'clock Thursday morning.

Attorney James Allen appeared for the defendant and asked for a continuance on the grounds that Davis was busy with a case in the superior court today. A warrant was issued for Davis as a delinquent in paying his city license several days ago. He appeared in court and deposited $3, the amount of the license, but refused to pay the penalty of 10 per cent, which amounted to 30 cents.

A legal battle over the 30 cents is anticipated when the case comes to trial.

KERNELS BY THE COLONEL

A local merchant is said to have cancelled an order of merchandise the other day because some knows-it-all came into his store and told him that business was going to the dogs this winter.

Just a plain case of calamity howling, and unfortunately there is no law against it. These birds that go around and predict poor business should be placed in the same class with the citizens who park in the center of the street at the post office. They're out of place.

Santa Ana had its first rain of the season Sunday, and the pavement was no more than wet before people were being informed that a terrible thing had happened—the bean crop was ruined.

Southern California, without rain for months, gets a shower, worth thousands of dollars to the citrus industry, to the health of its inhabitants, and in various other ways, and then to hear a bunch of "razers" go out and tell what a hard winter it's going to be, is enough to make you understand why people park in front of the post office.

The greatest harm done by the rain was the ruining of a few new fall hats. It possibly brought out the fact that the soles of last year's shoes were a little thinner, which should help the shoe business, and if it sent a chill through some of us, then it should stimulate the overcoat business.

CAN YOU IMAGINE A slot-machineless Santa Ana?

The talks of war echoed from Washington, during the naval inquiry, have brought out the fact that Japan is the only country that can fight us at this time, and in case of such a war, that Japan would use airplanes. Granted, but if the Japanese aviators drove their planes like some of the Jap citizens around here drive their Fords, it will be a short war.

Speaking of weddings, a William Marymee got married here the other day. For a man wishing to get married, a name such as his would be quite an advantage, especially if the man is a little timid and afraid to pop the question.

Some evening when he was all ready to propose, feeling that dreadful spell of "cold-feetis" coming on, all he would have to do would be to pull out his visiting card, put a question mark after the name on it and hand it to the young woman, who would read: "Will Marymee?" and then it would be up to her.

WHAT AMERICA NEEDS MOST

A few more people who can keep their mouths shut when things are going wrong.

The question of whether there are any lights on Fourth street has been discussed pro and con before, but nevertheless, two policemen captured an opossum at Fourth and Main streets the other night.

One officer said that the catch was easy because the animal couldn't see where he was going.

A man was arrested the other day for parking his machine in the center of the street on McFadden street, and there is no post office out there, either.

According to Bishop, T. E. Stephenson, postmaster, has requested that the line of parade be routed away from the post office, the postmaster expressing fear that the judges would not be able to distinguish the parade cars from those parked in the center of the street at the post office.—From Shriners' Bulletin.

The cars in the parade, mentioned above, are supposed to be wrecks, worn out machines that had their day along about 1911. Therefore, we take it that the above is rather a dirty crack at the machines that generally park in front of the post office.

DEFENDANT IN DAMAGE SUIT STRIKES BACK

Frank E. Wilson, well-to-do owner of property at the corner of Main street and Chapman avenue, Orange, who was sued for damages several days ago by Lloyd A. Hollister, proprietor of a lunch stand adjacent to the Wilson property, struck back at Hollister today.

Hollister's demand for $6194 damages, based on his contention that Wilson had maliciously shut off his water supply in order to freeze Hollister out of business, was answered by a suit for an injunction, to compel Hollister to move his lunch stand.

Wilson claims that the lunch stand extends over the property line 38 inches and encroaches upon Wilson's property to that extent. An order of the superior court, restraining Hollister from maintaining his lunch stand over the line, and forcing him to move it off the Wilson property, is asked. The suit also seeks to "quiet" title to the property. Wilson and Sigfred W. Swanson are both plaintiffs in the suit. Attorneys Scarborough, Forgy and Reinhaus, of Santa Ana, represent them.

Hollister's suit was filed against Wilson last week. He charged that Wilson caused the lunch stand's water supply to be shut off last June, in order to eliminate Hollister as competitor of a tenant of his house. Hollister's stand was connected with a water line that extended across the Wilson and Swanson property, from the city of Orange. When the water was shut off, Hollister was forced to install an elevated tank and haul water to it.

SEALS NEED ONLY 4 GAMES TO NAB FLAG

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 6.—With 14 games to go, the San Francisco Seals of the Pacific Coast Baseball league today needed only four victories to win the pennant.

All of the 15 games will be played on the home diamond against teams which the Seals have rather consistently beaten, so that sports followers are ready to concede the 1925 flag to the league leaders.

The Salt Lake Bees are the only contenders and would finish more than a point behind in the percentage column if they should win the next 14 games and the Seals should win only their four games.

Charged with distributing advertising matter about the yards and lawns of Orange, in violation of a city ordinance, James E. McDowell, manager of the stock company playing in Temple theater here, was fined $10 in City Recorder G. W. Ingle's court, in Orange, yesterday.

Following his arrest, McDowell pleaded not guilty to the charge and said he would fight the case. He later changed his plea to guilty and paid the fine.

The Well-Dressed Man

By BEAUNASH

Correct Clothes To Meet The Obligation Of Every Occasion

Putting on your "FALL'S FACE"
You can't change your face, but your hat can. The switch from a straw hat to a felt hat effects so complete a transformation in our looks, that it is, in effect, tantamount to putting on a new face. Few men appreciate this seemingly startling, but really indisputable fact. Personality in dress is, thus, up from your neck and up to your hat. No other article of wear should be chosen with more solicitous care than that of the right dimensions and color. No other article is of so great a detriment to one's appearance. The wrong way to select a hat is to put the thing off to the fifty-ninth minute of the eleventh hour. And then, rush in; rush up; rush through; rush out. The wrong way is to make up your mind what sort of a hat you want and then, refuse to take up anything else, regardless of the well-intentioned remonstrances of your hatter who knows heads, hats and harmony and their relationship to one another.

The right way to select a hat is to be open-minded and fancy-free about it, holding fixedly to but one resolve—that your hat must flatter your face, type and height. This dwarfs mere style. This is the unerring mark of The Well-Dressed Man. This is the only way to get pleasure from choosing a hat, and satisfaction in wearing it, and compliments upon it, if you care for that sort of thing.

This autumn, as last spring, fashion favors bold, breezy shapes, broad of brim and full of crown. These hats are not becoming to some men who are better advised to take hats a bit smaller or in the middle or so-called "conservative" effects. In any case, consider your face rather than fashion. Take the time and the slight trouble required to try on different styles. Don't be influenced too much by the fact that somebody else is wearing a hat you like. It may look admirable upon him, but questionable upon you.

The autumn shape, illustrated here, reveals the new bound, rolled brim that is now acceptable to many well-dressed men. Others prefer a brim more flat-set and a well-cut, recently revived of brown in suits. This hat comes in light and medium and dark tints. However, the various tones of gray, including good old pearl, are still in wide favor with youngsters.

CLOTHING AND JEWELRY FEDERATION OF WOMEN'S CLUBS IN S. A. FOUND HOLDS MEETING

Approximately $100 worth of clothing and jewelry, stolen from the home of J. N. Harding, 1427 North Bush street, on the night of September 23, was recovered late yesterday by Colton police, when they searched the home of Porfirio Blanco, a Mexican, after arresting him on a burglary charge, police here were informed last night.

Blanco, said to be an ex-convict, is in the San Bernardino jail, held in connection with three burglaries in that county.

The Harding home here was entered by at least two men, local police believe, and they are of the opinion that more of the loot obtained from the house is likely to be found. Blanco has refused to comment on the Santa Ana robbery, police believing he is trying to shield his partner in the burglary, who still may be in possession of a number of articles stolen here.

An overcoat, a string of pearls and other pieces of jewelry, reported as stolen, were said to have been found in Blanco's home. Clothing and jewelry, valued at approximately $475, were taken from the Harding house.

FLASHLIGHTS AND RIFLES ARE LOOT

Thieves looted the Myrick Bicycle store, 412 West Fourth street, some time last night and escaped with four rifles and four flashlights, valued at approximately $90, according to a report filed with the police early today.

Entrance into the building was made by breaking a grate in the rear of the building, leading to the basement. The burglars then came to the first floor and stole the rifles and flashlights from the front show window. They left by a rear door, which they unlocked from the inside.

A total of $150 in small change, which was left in the cash register over night, also was stolen.

The numbers of the rifles, one of which was a 32-20 caliber and the others of .22 caliber, were turned over to police today in an effort to locate the stolen property. The rifles were valued at $85 and the flashlights stolen represent a loss of approximately $7.

'Part Man' Gets 'Part Fine' for Not Paying Tax

Charged with trucking without having a city license, A. Gaines, a one-armed negro, furnished much amusement to spectators in Judge J. P. Talbot's court early today, when he appeared to face the charge.

"Are you guilty or not guilty?" the court asked.

"Well, Judge, you see I don't know, I guess I'm part guilty," Gaines began, and then for the next 15 minutes he broke forth in eloquence that would have done justice to the best of Santa Ana orators.

He finally admitted his guilt, but told the judge that he did not think he should be fined, "as I is only a part man, and I thought that I'd only hav' to pay part license, and then I plumb forgot to pay that."

The negro was fined $2.25, which the judge explained was only a "part fine."

According to police, Gaines has been trucking in the city for the last several years, and since the beginning he always has been on the license delinquent list.

3 GIRL HIKERS IN SANTA ANA ON WAY SOUTH

Hiking from their homes in New York to Florida and then to California, three girl globe trotters arrived here early today from Los Angeles, on their way to San Diego and Tia Juana. They expect to visit the extreme south end of the United States and then start back to New York. They plan to be home soon after the first snow falls.

Declaring that they are hiking merely "to improve our geography" and that they were not trying to win a wager, the girls said they left New York on May 2, 1925, that they hiked from there to Florida, and thence to New Orleans. From there they went north to Winnipeg, Canada.

They have climbed Mt. Rainier, or a portion of it, and have visited virtually all the national parks in the west.

After leaving San Diego, which they expect to do within the next few days, they will go to Texas, and then start north again, expecting to arrive in Chicago about November 1. From there to New York will be a short jaunt for them, they said, and they will be home for Thanksgiving.

The girls are hiking without money and depend on the hospitality of various communities for their meals. At breakfast today they were guests of "Pete" Peterson, of the Pennant cafe, and they said on leaving that they did not know where they would get their next meal, but hoped that it would be in San Diego.

The girls are not at all bashful about taking any ride that is offered them, but the car must be large enough to hold all three of them, as they refuse to be separated at any time.

The young women are Cecilia Stone, 19; Elsie Martin, 21, and Mary Kemp, 20.

"No, we won't give you our street addresses in New York, because if we do some of the papers will get back there and all our friends will say, 'I always knew those girls were crazy.'"

SPEED AND LIQUOR FINES TOTAL $125

Charged with possession of intoxicating liquor and speeding, P. H. McClure, Santa Ana, paid a total of $125 in fines in Recorder George F. Holden's court, in Anaheim, yesterday. He pleaded guilty to both charges and was fined $100 for possession and $25 on the speeding charge.

McClure is alleged to have led Anaheim motorcycle officers a merry chase out South Los Angeles street, Anaheim, before he was captured and is said to have been speeding 50 miles an hour.

When officers finally overtook him, they made a search of his machine and are alleged to have found a small quantity of whisky.

BUYS OUT PARTNER

Roy E. Miller, who has taken over the interest of Fremont Kutnewsky in the advertising agency of Kutnewsky and Miller. Kutnewsky is at present writing magazine articles.

MILLER TO MANAGE ADVERTISING FIRM

Roy E. Miller announced today that he had bought the interest of his partner, Fremont Kutnewsky, in the advertising agency of Kutnewsky and Miller. This firm was established last January and has enjoyed a satisfactory business, including the Orange County Farm bureau and the county fair among its clients. Kutnewsky, who has had a number of articles published in magazines recently, will continue in this and other specialties in Orange county.

Miller was associated with California fruit growers' co-operative organizations and with newspapers a number of years before coming to Orange county. He will continue the general advertising service in Santa Ana.

"Santa Ana and Orange county are proving good fields for the advertising men and good manufacturers," he said today. "The newspaper service here is most thorough; the people are well informed and discriminating buyers. That is why printer's ink pays so well and why progressive businesses are using more of it and are requiring the best in their copy. The publications, the Advertising club and the advertisers are all contributing greater service and fidelity in advertising with consequent improvement of business in method and volume."

NEW MEXICAN CENTER PLAN IS INDORSED

ANAHEIM, Oct. 6.—After civic leaders, Americanization workers and business men of Anaheim and Fullerton had laid bare the need for a cleaning up of Anaheim's unsightly Mexican district, and for the establishment of a clean, modern Mexican community in another section, Hon. Joseph Scott, of Los Angeles, brought to these citizens as they met last night at a 6:30 dinner in the Elks' clubhouse, Anaheim, a stirring appeal for the early commencement of the improvements planned.

The meeting was called by the forum committee of the Anaheim Chamber of Commerce, which, with school heads and Druzilla Mackey, superintendent of Americanization work for the Anaheim and Fullerton school districts, is sponsoring a plan for the doing away with "Mexican town" on the north end of Anaheim and the establishment of a modern Mexican colony in another section of the city. It is planned to construct the colony on modern lines with a community house located within the heart of the district for the use of Americanization workers in moulding better citizens out of these "new Americans."

"The game of service and sacrifice is the game of happiness and contentment," Mr. Scott declared. "The very foundations of our government rest on the success or failure of our efforts to Americanize the 'new Americans.' No expense and no effort should be spared in this important work. Every citizen of a community owes something to that community and here's a chance for the citizens of Anaheim to pay this debt."

Counseling caution and care in approaching the problem of moving the present Mexican settlement, Miss Mackey outlined some of the peculiarities in Mexican psychology which she said must be taken into consideration if success in securing the co-operation of the Mexicans themselves can be assured.

That the citrus grower, Mexican labor is practically indispensable and that to have clean, sanitary colonies of satisfied Mexican workers nearby is good business not only to the citrus grower but to the community at large was the statement of J. A. Prizler, manager of the Placentia Orange Growers' association, of Fullerton, whose organization built and maintains one of the most modern of Mexican camps.

Other speakers on the evening's program were Principal J. A. Claves, of the Anaheim Union High school, who outlined the financial difficulties faced by the Americanization department of the school; H. W. Lewis and Frank N. Gibbs, members of the Anaheim school board who promised their co-operation.

A resolution presented by Dr. H. D. Newkirk and unanimously carried puts the assembly on record as favoring the proposed plan of creating a new Mexican colony and building a community center.

WHAT COUNCIL DID COUNCIL TAKES UP MUNICIPAL GAS ORDINANCE

The new gasoline ordinance and several resolutions relating to public improvements, prepared by Acting City Attorney Franklin G. West, were among matters taken up at the regular city council meeting, held last night in the city hall.

The city gasoline ordinance, the provisions of which are similar to that of the county ordinance, passed its first reading. It regulates the testing, sale and delivery of petroleum and petroleum products.

First Street Paving
Heading the list of resolutions relating to public improvements was that adopting plans and specifications for the grading and paving of East First street, from Main street to the city limit. According to estimates prepared by the city engineer, the project will involve an outlay of about $75,000, of which amount the city will bear $25,000.

Other measures approved were: Resolution adopting assessment diagram of the lighting district on Broadway, between First and Sixth streets, plans and specifications for which have been approved.

Resolutions overruling protests and objections to assessment diagram for improvement of Broadway and Olive street.

Resolution overruling protests and objections, and approving assessment diagram for improvement of South Van Ness avenue.

Resolution relating to issuance of street improvement bonds, determining the amount of unpaid assessments, prescribing denomination of such bonds, and providing for their issuance, for improvement of North Lyon street.

Resolution overruling protests and objections to assessments, and approving assessment diagram, for improvement of Baker street.

Street Improvement Bonds
Resolution relating to issuance of street improvement bonds, determining the amount of unpaid assessments, prescribing denomination of such bonds, and providing for their issuance, for improvement of Shelton street.

Resolution of intention for paving of Maple avenue, between McFadden and Edinger streets, establishing an assessment district, and providing for the issuance of bonds to finance the project.

Cigaret Smoking Tests Sobriety

BELFAST, Ire., Oct. 6.—The "cigaret test" is the latest of the schemes for determining the state of man's sobriety—or lack of it. A Belfast saloon keeper was arraigned charged with permitting drunkenness in his saloon. The police stated that the man supplied with liquor was dazed and staggering.

Whereupon the saloon keeper called as witness for his defense a physician who was in the saloon at the time. The doctor testified: "I gave the man a cigarette to smoke, which he did with deliberation and neatness. This would have been impossible in the case of a drunken man."

The jury returned a verdict of "not guilty."

Removal of Yost Theater Sign Is Council's Order

Finis was written last night to a series of long-drawn-out negotiations between the city authorities and the Yost theater management, when the city fathers, at their regular meeting, directed the theater management to remove at once the suspended electric sign hanging over East Fourth street.

The action was supported by a unanimous vote, recorded on the minutes. Several months ago the management of the Walker theater filed an application for permission to hang a suspended electric sign across North Main street, in front of their building. In presenting the application, attention was called to the fact that such a privilege had been extended to the Yost theater.

The application of the Walker theater was withdrawn, however, with the understanding that steps would be taken by the city council to have the Yost theater sign removed from the public highway. To carry out this promise, negotiations were entered into with the Yost management, which, in turn, assured the city authorities that the sign would be removed.

COUNCIL TAKES UP MAIN STREET WORK

Miscellaneous matters taken up at the city council meeting, held last night, included plans and specifications for paving of South Main street; acceptance and recording of grant deeds to property for street purposes, and employment of engineers and legal counsel to handle work in connection with proposed extension of the joint outfall sewer.

The city engineer was directed to bring in plans and specifications for paving South Main street from First street to the city limit. According to estimates prepared by the engineering department, the job will cost $75,000. Of this amount, the city will bear $20,000, the balance to be charged to the adjoining property holders.

Grant deeds to portions of North Bristol street, between West Eighth and Washington streets, for street purposes, were accepted and recorded from the following property owners, having frontage on the street: Harry Crowe, Catherine Crowe, Joseph P. Thompson, Winifred R. Thompson, Ruth Brown, Harry C. Brown, L. E. Martin, Erta L. Martin, Albert G. Hesse, Laura E. Hesse, John Weston, W. M. Wesley, Emma L. Hollingsworth, Frank D. Hollingsworth, R. E. Temple, L. A. Brady, Nan B. Brady, Louise Schrader, Mrs. Anna D. Miller and L. E. Martin.

A joint resolution, adopted by the council, provides for the employment of Burns, McDonald and Smith, Los Angeles engineers, to prepare the plans and specifications for proposed extension of the joint outfall sewer. Clyde Bishop, Santa Ana attorney, will have charge of the legal work incidental to drawing up contracts and other documents.

PUBLIC RADIO CONCERTS HERE MAY BE HALTED

What may be regarded as a forerunner to municipal legislation regulating free open air radio concerts given for publicity or advertising purposes was the action taken last night by the city council in directing Police Commissioner George McPhee, a member of the council, to invoke the police powers of the city in abating nuisances resulting from loud speaker performances, against which there might have been complaints filed with the city authorities.

The action of the city fathers came as a result of complaints filed with the police department against the "free for all" city-wide radio concert, given yesterday afternoon and evening by the management of the Walker theater, which effort at public entertainment failed to meet with the approval of persons living in the neighborhood.

With the aid of two loud speakers, mounted at the top of the theater building, a complete vaudeville program was broadcast over the air. It was asserted by the complainants, including several doctors and lawyers in the First National bank building, that the musical treat given the downtown section was everything but pleasing, and interfered with their work.

In the absence of any specific ordinance regulating the operation of radio loud speakers in public places, for advertising and publicity purposes, the council directed the police commissioner to take cognizance of the complaint, and, if found to constitute a nuisance, to have it abated.

STATE P.-T. A. PRESIDENT TO ATTEND MEET IN FULLERTON

Mrs. Hugh Bradford Will Be Speaker at County Organization Session

ASSEMBLYMAN ALSO WILL GIVE ADDRESS

Many Subjects Affecting Public School System to Come Before Group

A wide list of subjects, many of them vitally affecting the public school system in California, as it relates to child welfare, will be taken up at the general fall meeting of the fourth (Orange county) district of the California Congress of Parents and Teachers, to be held Saturday, October 10, in Fullerton, it was announced today by Mrs. Mary B. Robertson, publicity secretary of the district.

The session, to be held in the Fullerton Women's clubhouse (Ebbell), located at Harvard and Chapman streets, will be called to order at 9:30 in the morning by Mrs. J. Edmund Snow, of Santa Ana, president of the district organization.

The complete program, now under preparation, will center itself around department work and its specialized activities. These include Americanization, having special reference to Mexican children; education, art, emblem and magazine, press, program, speakers' list, thrift, ways and means. Each of these problems will be taken up by their respective department chairmen.

Listed as a drawing card on the program is the appearance of Mrs. Hugh Bradford, president of the California state organization of the P.-T. A., who will speak in the afternoon.

County Is Honored
In securing the personal attendance of the state president, Orange county is signally honored, for this will be her first visit to any of California's 15 P.-T. A. districts following her return, this week from Omaha, where she attended the meeting of the National Board of Managers of the P.-T. A. organization.

The state president is well known throughout Orange county, the district president, Mrs. J. Edmund Snow declared, adding that she was sure that the entire voting strength of Orange county would go for Mrs. Bradford, who, it is understood is a candidate for second national vice president.

Takes Active Stand
According to Mrs. Snow, the state president has taken a very active stand in all legislation affecting the public school system and child welfare.

An interesting feature of the work of the organization, District President Mrs. Snow added, is the formation of child study circles, under the leadership of Mrs. E. R. Drum, of Berkeley, national chairman, and Mrs. Earl Morris, of Santa Ana, state chairman of education, awaited with considerable interest by school legislation, is the address to be delivered by Assemblyman Samuel S. Hartman, of Fullerton, who, as chairman of the assembly committee on education, and much to do with the action taken by the state legislature on bills and measures sponsored by the P.-T. A. organization.

MRS. WILSON REPORTED ENGAGED TO PHYSICIAN

From Paris come rumors that Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, widow of the late president, will marry Dr. Sterling Ruffin, a Washington physician and close friend of the Wilsons for many years. Ruffin is 58 and a bachelor. Mrs. Wilson and he have been seen together frequently in Paris this summer.

TEACHERS UNABLE TO GIVE ENOUGH TIME TO STUDENTS SURVEY OF SCHOOLS SHOWS

Working hours of 9 to 3 or 4 don't sound like much, offhand, but they are just enough to wear the nerves of a school teacher to a frazzle. Teaching—and this, according to the teachers themselves—is one of the hardest jobs extant.

According to Principal D. K. Hammond, of the Santa Ana high school, college and high school teachers are not overworked. They simply haven't time to attend to everything that they are expected to.

Knowing this, continued Hammond, they do as much as is humanly possible and then leave the rest to take care of itself. There are very few cases in which teachers do not have too much to do.

"For instance," said Hammond, "it was an established fact that President William W. Campbell, of Berkeley, was overworked."

Did Not Complain
"He did the work of two men and never complained because such a thing was considered proper where college presidents were concerned. Last year some person with more insight than falls to the lot of the average human being caused another man to be added to the staff in order that Mr. Campbell could be relieved of the strain of attending to the financial end. This man was Robert G. Spaulding and already he has proven his worth to the doubting public who could not see the necessity of relieving the president. Besides Mr. Spaulding there is Walter M. Hart, who attends to the administrative details at Berkeley. He, too, is a very useful man, without whom the Berkeley school would have a hard time getting along."

In high schools, teachers also are given more to do than they can possibly accomplish. Hammond said yesterday that he isn't overworked but that he cannot spend as much time as he feels that he should on interviews with the students and their parents.

Not Enough Time
Of course there is the vice-principal, W. M. Clayton, but he is only allowed to spend half of his time at the work that could easily take up all of his time if it were possible to devote the time to it. Mr. Hammond has in his care the high school, the night school and part of the junior college work besides having numerous conferences with the students themselves.

Mrs. Eleanor Northcross, dean of women at the Santa Ana junior college, says that "the proficiency in writing and speaking the English language, which this community has a right to expect from its high school graduates, cannot be attained until the English classes in the high school are smaller. English teachers cannot give a sufficient amount of written work as the classes are now assigned. The burden of correcting papers is so great that teachers are obliged to do one of two things: cut down the number of papers or turn over part of the correcting to the student assistants. The schools suffer from either alternative."

Miss Jennie Lasby, head of the astronomy department at the junior college, also thinks that enough time cannot be spent on the individual student under present conditions.

Need More Teachers
The girls' athletic classes should have another instructor after the new gymnasium is built if the teaching is to be efficient, declared Miss Florence Treadway, who is physical training teacher in the junior college and high school.

There is hardly a department in the junior college and the high school that could not be benefited by more teachers, it is said.

NOTE INCREASE IN POST OFFICE BUSINESS HERE

The September business at the Santa Ana post office showed a 10 per cent gain over September, 1924. Other figures given at the Santa Ana post office today show a substantial and satisfactory gain for the quarter that ended September 30.

Postal business is reported at the end of each quarter by the local post office to the department in Washington. The quarterly report for July, August and September shows a total postal business of $28,886.63, as against $27,213.36 for the corresponding quarter of 1924, and $26,486.17 for the same quarter in 1923.

The September receipts this year went to $405.21. The receipts for September a year ago were $345.88. The gain made in favor of this year's September is $59.33.

"While the raise in rates made last April is responsible for some of the gain," said T. E. Stephenson, postmaster, "most of the gain is in the sale of two-cent stamps, the carrying power of which was not changed by the April raise. The office shows a clear-cut growth in business."

Old Mining Town May Boom Again
MEDFORD, Ore., Oct. 6.—Jacksonville may come back into its own as a mining town.

It was a roaring mining camp 60 years ago and figured prominently in the early history of southern Oregon. Now it is practically deserted. Empty buildings are everywhere. Almost the whole town has moved to Medford.

But prospects of rejuvenation came when Joe Langwell, veteran miner, sank a shaft on the main street and brought out $10 worth of gold in one panning.

He claims to have struck a rich ledge and has engaged two men to help him. Operations are carried on with an old fashioned hoist and rocker.

Twelve planes crashed—one for each 208,463 miles—and serious injuries were suffered by only two pilots in flight and three postal employees on the ground.

As to efficiency, the planes carried 9,300,520 letters, 2,076,764 miles with a record of 96 per cent arrivals on time and less than .005 per cent of letters lost.

Service Across Continent Has 96 Per Cent on Time Record

With army and navy air services on the operating table, their "innards" exposed to public view, one government aviation branch still remains untouched by the critic-surgeon's knife.

That is air mail. Figures compiled by Chase C. Gove, deputy second assistant postmaster general, show the reason.

These show that the air mail has had its accidents and tragedies, but that compared to the number of miles flown, these mishaps have been relatively few and far between.

On Time Record
The records show the transcontinental service arrives on time 96 per cent of the time.

Since its inauguration in 1918, air mail has taken a death toll of 49.

Twenty-nine of the victims were pilots, nine were postal employees accompanying them, and two were employees killed on the ground by propellers.

During the same period, air mail planes flew 10,526,532 miles—263,163 miles for each fatality and 263,984 for every fatal crash.

In all, 157 air mail planes have crashed—an average of one every 67,048 miles.

But the number of persons seriously injured, both in flight and on the ground, totals only 23.

And 261,978,120 letters have been carried 9,008,395 miles. That is airmail's record since its start—including the days when all-metal plane disasters gave the service its worst setback.

Of recent years, this record has been bettered in both efficiency and safety.

During the first year of transcontinental day and night flying, which ended last June 30, air mail planes flew 2,501,555 miles and two pilots comprised the total death toll—an average of 1,250,777 miles for each fatality.

Twelve planes crashed—one for each 208,463 miles—and serious injuries were suffered by only two pilots in flight and three postal employees on the ground.

As to efficiency, the planes carried 9,300,520 letters, 2,076,764 miles with a record of 96 per cent arrivals on time and less than .005 per cent of letters lost.

100 GATHER FOR JUNIOR C. OF C. KNOCKERS' EVE

"Knockers' night" at the meeting of the junior chamber of commerce last night served to bring out nearly 100 members who made constructive suggestions for improvement of the organization.

The main business of the evening was preceded by reports of committees.

E. M. "Sunny" Sundquist, chairman of the golf committee, reported that the officers of the Santa Ana Country club had made the chamber a very attractive offer as regards the holding of the body's tournament over the Country club course. Two flights of 16 players each, with prizes to be awarded to the winner and runners-up in each flight, are planned. According to present plans, the members were informed, the tournament will start October 15 and conclude November 15. Sundquist said the committee hoped to secure at least 32 players.

Chamber Accepts Offer.
The offer of the Santa Ana Country club was accepted and Sundquist was directed to proceed with plans for the tournament.

The trophy cup offered the winner of the junior chamber city tennis tournament was presented to John Kress, who was present to receive it. Kress said that a junior chamber tennis team was to be formed to consist of the six best players in the city and that teams from other cities would be played.

As the result of indoor baseball games participated in by the team of the chamber, Horace Snow turned $80 into the athletic treasury, which brought the total to $198, accumulated by the organization from a beginning of $25.

William Croddy, chairman of the chamber's aviation committee, reported on the air meet, which is to be held at Eddie Martin's field in November. Croddy said that November 21 had been suggested for the meet, but that some objection might be made to that date inasmuch as Iowa and U. S. C. football teams clash on the coliseum gridiron that day.

Prizes to Be Offered.
A number of U. S. C. alumni, former residents of Iowa, and dead-in-the-wool football fans, objected to the date, but the consensus seemed to be that the football game would not interfere with the success of the air meet. A number of very substantial prizes will be offered, every race has been planned and the air meet as a whole will prove interesting to Santa Ana and Orange county in the opinion of Croddy. The meet is sponsored by both the Santa Ana Chamber of Commerce and the junior organization. Members of the latter organization, Croddy said, are expected to police the grounds and provide the prizes.

The matter of accepting an invitation from the Palisades club to hold a junior chamber of commerce dance at that place was the subject of long discussion. A member, who claimed he "knew a good road when he saw one," pointed out that the road to the club is of adobe composition and that a dance in

BUILDS RESIDENCE ON SIDE OF HILL

Brisbane Tells of California's Attractions As An Ideal Place of Abode

If you have driven out to the county park lately, or up the El Modena grade, you have no doubt noticed, as you passed through El Modena, a fine new house in course of erection on the side of the hill just south of the village. This is the dream home—the dream come true—of a remarkable man, a man whom Arthur Brisbane, the great editorial writer of the Hearst publications, calls "a real newspaper man." His name is Andrew E. Adair, and on January 2, next, he will have been for 50 years without a break in charge of the composing room of the Chicago Daily News.

On the first page of last Sunday's Los Angeles Examiner there is a double column picture of Arthur Brisbane and an interview with him by an Examiner reporter, in which Mr. Brisbane tells all about Mr. Adair, with whom he came out from Chicago on the Santa Fe limited. Incidentally Mr. Brisbane tells something about himself and gives reasons why he and Mr. Adair both believe in and love California.

Came to See Hearst.
"I came here to see Mr. Hearst," said Mr. Brisbane, "bringing the oldest three of my six children. The oldest, a girl of 12, returns with me to her school in the east. My two boys, 11 and 8, will stay here on a little alfalfa ranch that I have bought on the Mojave desert, 60 miles back from the Pacific."

"Before I go back, I expect to own more California land, in addition to the small ranch that I have just bought for my children. My good friend, Herbert Fleischacker, of San Francisco, has promised to get for me the other land that I have picked out."

"I can tell you, if you like," continued Mr. Brisbane, "about a real newspaper man, who will soon move to California, and is building a house there now. That will interest Californians." He then proceeded to talk about Mr. Adair, who got his union card as a typesetter when first time, nearly 60 years ago.

"Mr. Adair," he said, "is really a first-class newspaper man, faithful to the newspaper and the man that employed him, faithful to men working with him in the composing room, delighted at changing conditions that have increased their pay."

Wishes Lawson Had It Back.
"When he died, Victor Lawson left $25,000 to Mr. Adair. The latter, with sincerity that no one would question, says, 'I wish Victor Lawson were alive again with my $25,000 in his pocket.'"

"Mr. Adair is 75 years old. His son is a captain in the regular army and married, with a fine boy. His daughter has five sons, one of them a sporting editor in Lafayette. All are doing well. Mr. Adair, independent, says the world owes him nothing. He has worked hard more than 60 years for his independence, but he has it and that satisfies him."

"His favorite quotation goes this way: 'It isn't the greatness of your wealth but the littleness of

The phrase, "The Greatest Swanson Picture ever made," has been used before, not without truth. But if ever a picture merited that phrase, it's "The Coast of Folly." Only this time it ought to be printed in bold italics, for that's just what it is—THE GREATEST SWANSON PICTURE EVER MADE.

It's a story of frivolous, fashionable, money-drunk Palm Beach. Of a beautiful girl (played by Gloria Swanson) who is swallowed up in the dangerous undercurrent and dashed upon the shoals of scandal. How she fights back and finally finds the harbor of love and happiness is absorbingly told without a second's let-down of suspense.

Not only is this Gloria's greatest acting role—her first big dual role in which she plays two distinct characters—but also her greatest fashion role in which she displays the latest in beach and ballroom styles. Gorgeous doesn't half describe them.

YOST THEATER

Monte Blue and Marie Prevost recently deserted the Warner Bros. studio to be married—but not to each other.

Now they are back at work after their respective honeymoons, and were assigned to play the two leading roles in "Recompense," the screen adaptation of the "best seller" of the same name, a sequel to "Simon Called Peter." "Recompense" opens at the Yost theater tonight.

This is the story of what followed after the madcap week-adventure in Paris. The stirring action moves from Paris of Armistice Day, to Africa of the desolate veldts, and thence jumps to London, when the drama comes to its climax.

The adaptation is by Dorothy Farnum and the direction by Harry Beaumont. Both are known for brilliant work in their respective fields.

The supporting cast comprises, in addition to Blue and Prevost.

Coolidge Addresses Convention of American Legion

PRESIDENT DECLARES IN OPPOSITION TO INCREASED U. S. MILITARY EXPENSE

OMAHA, Neb., Oct. 6.—President Coolidge today declared against increased military expenditures by the United States and called on the country to practice tolerance at home and abroad as a guarantee of peace. Speaking before thousands of World War veterans at the American Legion convention here, the president said:

"Our people have had all the war, all the taxation, and all the military service that they want."

Solemnly, he warned the nation against militarism, suppression of civil liberties, and religious and racial bigotry.

"The results of the war will be lost and we shall only be entering a period of preparation for another conflict," the president said, "unless we can demolish the racial antagonisms, fears, hatreds, and suspicions, and create an attitude of tolerance in the public mind of the people of the earth."

"If our country is to have any position of leadership, I trust it may be in that direction, and I believe that the place where it should begin is at home."

After praising the patriotic valor of the veterans and the military profession, Mr. Coolidge expressed strong opposition to increased military expenditures.

Speech by President

The president spoke as follows: Mr. Commander and Members of the American Legion:

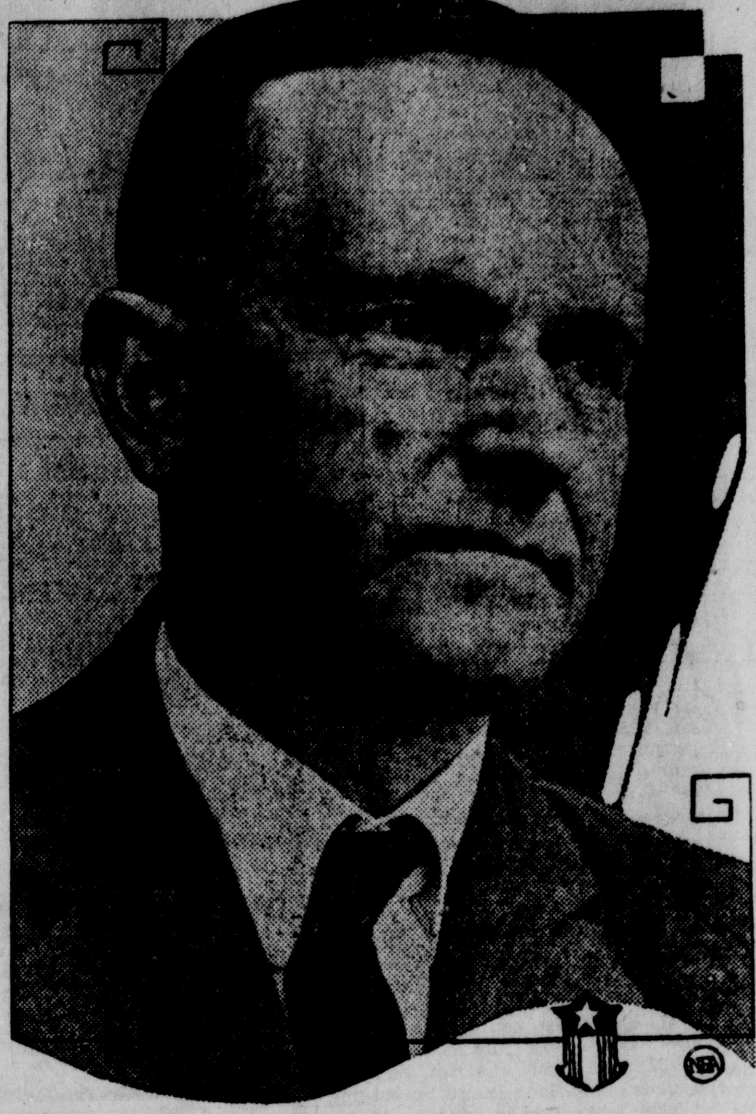

It is a high privilege to sit as a member of this convention. Those who exercise it have been raised to the rank of a true nobility. It is a mark of personal merit which did not come by right of birth but by right of conquest. No one can ever question your title as patriots. No one can ever doubt the place of affection and honor which you hold forevermore in the heart of the nation. From what you dared and what you did and the sacrifices which you made for our common country. It is all a glorious story of American enterprise and American valor.

The magnitude of the service which you rendered to your country and to humanity is beyond estimation. Since the outbreak here and there of the World War would be on a scale so stupendous that it could never be recorded. In the victory which was finally gained by you and your foreign comrades, you represented on the battle field the united efforts of our whole people. You were there as the result of the old American spirit, which manifested itself in a thousand ways—by the pouring out of vast sums of money in credits and charities, by the organization and quickening of every hand in our extended industries, by the expansion of agriculture, by the met the demands of furnishing continents, by the unending stream of munitions and supplies, by the creation of vast fleets of war and transport ships, and finally, when the tide of battle was turning against our associates, by bringing into action a great armed force on sea and land of a character that the world had never seen before, which, when it finally took its place in the line, never ceased to advance, carrying the cause of liberty to a triumphant conclusion. You reaffirmed the position of this nation in the estimation of mankind. You saved civilization from a gigantic reverse. Nobody says now that Americans can not fight.

Not Moved by Hatred

Our people were influenced by many motives to undertake to carry on this gigantic conflict, but we went in and came out singularly free from those questionable causes and results which have often characterized other wars. We were not moved by the age-old antagonisms of racial jealousies and hatreds. We were not seeking to gratify the ambitions of any reigning dynasty. We were not inspired by trade and commercial rivalries. We harbored no imperialistic designs. We feared no other country. We coveted no territory. But the time came when we were compelled to defend our own property and protect the rights and lives of our own citizens. We believed, moreover, that those institutions which we cherish with a supreme affection, and which lie at the foundation of our whole scheme of human relationship, the right of freedom, of equality, of self-government, were all in jeopardy. We thought the question was involved of whether the people of the earth were to rule or whether they were to be ruled. We thought that we were helping to determine whether the experienced in this country and fairly well distributed among all our people, is already at hand.

Our country has a larger army and a more powerful navy, costing annually almost twice as much as it ever before had in time of peace. I am a thorough believer in a policy of adequate military preparation. We are constantly working to perfect our defenses in every branch, land forces, air forces, surface and submarine forces. That work will continue. Our military establishment of the army and navy, the national guard and the reserve corps is far superior to anything we have ever maintained before, except in time of war. In the past six years we have expended about $4,000,000,000 for this purpose. That ought to show results, and those who have correct information know that it does show results. The country can rest assured that if security lies in military force, it was never so secure before in all its history.

We have been attempting to relieve ourselves and the other nations from the old theory of competitive armaments. In spite of all the arguments in favor of great military forces, no nation ever had an army large enough to guarantee it against attack in time of peace or to insure its victory in time of war. No nation ever will. Peace and security are more likely to result from fair and honorable dealings, and mutual agreements for a limitation of armaments among nations, than by any attempt at competition in squadrons and battalions. No doubt this country could, if it wished to spend more money, make a better military force, but that is only part of the problem which confronts our government. The real question is whether spending more money to make a better military force would really make a better country. I would be the last to disparage the military art. It is an honorable and patriotic calling of the highest rank. But I can see no merit in any unnecessary expenditure of money to hire men to build fleets and carry muskets when international relations and agreements permit the turning of such resources into the making of good roads, the building of better homes, the promotion of education, and all the other arts of peace which minister to the advancement of human welfare. Happily, the position of our country is such among the other nations of the world that we have been and shall be warranted in proceeding in this direction.

People Weary of War

While it is true that we are paying our far more money and maintaining a much stronger military establishment than ever before, because of the conditions stated, we have been able to pursue a moderate course. Our people have had all the war, all the taxation, and all the military service that they want. They have therefore wished to emphasize their attachment to our ancient policy of peace. They have insisted upon economy. They have supported the principle of limitation of armaments. They have been able to do this because of their position and their strength in numbers and in resources. We have a tremendous natural power which supplements our arms. We are conscious that no other nation harbors any design to put us in jeopardy. It is our purpose in our intercourse with foreign powers to rely not on the strength of our fleets and our armies but on the justice of our cause. For these reasons our country has not wished to maintain huge military forces. It has been convinced that it could better serve itself and better serve humanity by using its resources for other purposes.

In dealing with our military problems there is one principle that is exceedingly important. Our institutions are founded not on military power but on civil authority. We are irrevocably committed to the theory of a government by the people. We have our constitutions and our laws, our executives, our legislatures, and our courts, but ultimately we are governed by public opinion. Our forefathers had seen so much of militarism, and suffered so much from it, that they believed and declared in at least one of their state constitutions that the military power should be subordinate to and governed by the civil authority. It is for this reason that any organization of men in the military service bent on inflaming the public mind for the purpose of forcing government action through the pressure of public opinion is an exceedingly dangerous undertaking and precedent. This is so whatever form it might take, whether it be for the purpose of influencing the executive, the legislature, or the heads of departments. It is for the civil authority to determine what appropriations shall be granted, what appointments shall be made, and what rules shall be adopted for the conduct of its armed forces. Whenever the military power starts dictating to the civil authority, by whatsoever means adopted, the liberties of the country are beginning to end. National defense should at all times be supported, but any form of militarism should be resisted.

Selective Service Act

Undoubtedly one of the most important provisions in the preparation for national defense is a proper and sound selective service act. Such a law ought to give authority for a very broad mobilization of all the resources of the country, both persons and materials. I can see some difficulties in the application of the principle, for it is the payment of a higher price that stimulates an increased production, but whenever it can be done without economic dislocation such limits ought to be established in time of war as would prevent so far as possible all kinds of profiteering. There is little defense which can be made of a system which puts some men in the ranks on very small pay and leaves others undisturbed to reap very large profits. Even the income tax, which recaptured for the benefit of the national treasury alone about 75 per cent of such profits, while the local governments took part of the remainder, is not a complete answer. The laying of taxes is, of course, in itself a conscription of whatever is necessary of the wealth of the country for national defense. But taxation does not meet the full requirements of the situation. In the advent of war, power should be lodged somewhere for the stabilization of prices as far as that might be possible in justice to the country and its defenders. But it will always be impossible to harmonize justice and war. It is always possible to purchase materials with money, but patriotism cannot be purchased. Unless the people are willing to defend their country because of their belief in it, because it is representative of their home, their country can not be defended. It is looking for a more complete reign of justice, a more complete supremacy of law, a more complete social harmony, we must seek it in the paths of peace. Progress in these directions under the present order of the world is not likely to be made except during a state of domestic and international tranquility. One of the great questions before the nations today is how to promote such tranquility.

The economic problems of society are important. On the whole, we are meeting them fairly well. They are so personal and so pressing that they never fail to receive constant attention. But they are only a part. We need to put a proper emphasis on the other problems of society. We need to consider what attitude of the public mind it is necessary to cultivate in order that a mixed population like our own may dwell together more harmoniously and the family of nations reach a better state of understanding. You who have been in the service know how absolutely necessary it is in a military organization that the individual subordinate some part of his personality for the general good. That is the one great lesson which results from the training of a soldier. Whoever has been taught that lesson in camp and field is thereafter better equipped to appreciate that it is equally applicable in other departments of life. It is necessary in the home, in industry and commerce, in scientific and intellectual development. At the foundation of every strong and mature character we find this trait which is best described as being subject to discipline. The essence of it is tolerance. It is tolerance in the broadest and most inclusive sense, a liberality of mind, which gives to the opinions and judgments of others the same generous consideration that it asks for its own, and which is moved by the spirit of the philosopher who declared that "to know all is to forgive all." It may not be given to finite beings to attain that ideal, but it is none the less one toward which we should strive.

Intolerance Outcome of War

One of the most natural of reactions during the war was intolerance.

But the inevitable disregard for the opinions and feelings of minorities is none the less a disturbing product of war psychology. The slow and difficult advances which tolerance and liberalism have made through long periods of development are dissipated almost in a night when the necessary wartime habits of thought hold the minds of the people. The necessity for a common purpose and a united intellectual front becomes paramount to everything else. But when the need for such a solidarity is past there should be a quick and old and normal habits of thought. There should be an intellectual demobilization as well as a military demobilization. Progress depends very largely on the encouragement of variety. Whatever tends to standardize the community, to establish fixed and rigid modes of thought, tends to fossilize society. If we all believed the same thing and thought the same thoughts and applied the same valuations to all the occurrences of equilibrium closely reach a state of intellectual and spiritual paralysis. It is the ferment of ideas, the clash of disagreeing judgments, the privilege of the individual to develop his own character, that makes progress possible. It is not possible to learn much from those who uniformly agree with us. But many useful things are learned from those who disagree with us; and even when we can gain nothing our differences are likely to do us no harm.

In this period of after-war rigidity, suspicion, and intolerance our own country has not been exempt from unfortunate experiences. Thanks to our comparative isolation, we have known less of the international frictions and rivalries that some other countries less fortunately situated. But among some of the varying racial, religious, and social groups of our people there have been manifestations of an intolerance of opinion, a narrowness of outlook, a fixity of judgment, against which we may well be warned. It is not easy to conceive of anything that would be more unfortunate in a community based upon the ideals of which Americans boast than any considerable development of intolerance as regards religion. To a great extent this country owes its beginnings to the determination of our hardy ancestors to maintain complete freedom in religion. Instead of a state church we have decreed that every citizen shall be free to follow the dictates of his own conscience as to his religious beliefs and affiliations. Under that guaranty we have erected a system which certainly is justified by its fruits. Under no other could we have dared to invite the peoples of all countries and creeds to come here and unite with us in creating the state of which we are all citizens. But having invited them here, having accepted their great and varied contributions to the building of the nation, it is for us to maintain in all good faith those liberal institutions and traditions which have been so productive of good. The bringing together of all these different national, racial, religious and cultural elements has made our country a kind of composite of the rest of the world, and we can render no greater service than by demonstrating the possibility of harmonious co-operation among so many various groups. Every one of them has something characteristic and significant of great value to cast into the common fund of our material, intellectual and spiritual resources.

United People in War

The war brought a great test of our experiment in amalgamating these varied factors into a real nation, with the ideals and aspirations of a united people. None was exempted from the obligation to serve when the hour of danger struck. The event proved that our theory had been sound. On a solid foundation of national unity there had been erected a superstructure which in its varied parts had offered full opportunity to develop all the range of talents and genius that had gone into its making. Well-nigh all the races, religions and nationalities of the world were represented in the armed forces of this nation, as they were in the body of our population. No man's patriotism was impugned or service questioned because of his racial origin, his political opinion, or his religious convictions. Immigrants and sons of immigrants from the central European countries fought side by side with those who descended from the countries which were our allies; with the sons of equatorial Africa; and with the red men of our own aboriginal population, all of them equally proud of the name Americans.

We must not, in times of peace, permit ourselves to lose any part from this structure of patriotic unity. I make no plea for leniency toward those who are enemies of society and are not prepared to accept the true standards of our citizenship. By tolerance I do not mean indifference to evil. I mean respect for different kinds of good. Whether one traces his Americanism back three centuries to the Mayflower, or three years to the steamer, is not half so important as whether his Americanism of today is real and genuine. No matter by what various crafts we came here, we are all now in the same boat. You men constituted the crew of our "Ship of State" during her passage through the roughest waters. You made up the watch and held the danger posts when the storm was fiercest. You brought her safely and triumphantly into port. Out of that experience you have learned the lessons of discipline, tolerance, respect for authority and regard for the basic manhood of your neighbor. You bore aloft a standard of patriotic conduct and civic integrity, to which all could repair. Such a standard, with a like common appeal, must be upheld just as firmly and unitedly now in time of peace. Among citizens honestly devoted to the maintenance of that standard, there need be small concern about differences of individual opinion in other regards. Granting first the essentials of loyalty to our country and to our fundamental institutions, we may not only overlook, but we may encourage differences of opinion as to other things. For differences of this kind will certainly be elements of strength rather than of weakness. They will give variety to our tastes and interests. They will broaden our vision, strengthen our understanding, encourage the true humanities, and enrich our whole mode and conception of life. I recognize the full and complete necessity of 100 per cent Americanism, but 100 per cent Americanism may be made up of many various elements.

No Monopoly on Patriotism

If we are to have that harmony and tranquility, that union of spirit which is the foundation of real national genius and national progress, we must all realize that there are true Americans who did not happen to be born in our section of the country, who do not attend our place of religious worship, who are not of our racial stock, or who are not proficient in our language. If we are to create on this continent a free republic and an enlightened civilization that will be capable of reflecting the true greatness and glory of mankind, it will be necessary to regard these differences

High Cost of Government
The next most pressing problem was the better ordering of the finances of the nation. Our government was costing almost more than it was worth. It had more people on the pay roll than were necessary, all of which made expenses too much and taxes too high. This inflated condition contributed to the depression which began in 1920. But the government expenditures have been almost cut in two, taxes have been reduced, and the incoming congress will provide further reductions. Deflation has run its course and an era of business activity and general prosperity, exceeding anything ever before your wants that means freedom. "Only a few things Mr. Adair considers necessary to his happiness. "First, good health for his wife. "Second, a home in California. He has bought the land and is building the house now, at Orange, 35 miles southeast of Los Angeles. "Anybody who thinks he has seen a more beautiful view than the view from my California house hasn't seen the view from my house," says Mr. Adair. "He wants an automobile and a good one. He can buy any kind he wants. "He wants a good bed to sleep in. That he can have. "And he would like to continue as superintendent of the News, at least until the second of next January, when he will have finished his fiftieth year in that composing room.

NEWS MAN BUILDS EL MODENA HOME

He Will Have His Wish. "He will have no trouble about that. John J. Mitchell, head of the Illinois Merchants Trust company who now controls the Daily News, under Lawson's will, can also remember when General Grant was elected. If he and Mr. Adair ever have any quarrel it will be because Mr. Adair won't want to stay as long as Mr. Mitchell would like to have him stay. "Mr. Adair's record is one worth having. He began in the Daily News office 50 years ago, when Melville Stone, who by the way is my cousin, started the paper in a room rented from Victor Lawson. Lawson then had nothing to do with the newspaper. He bought it from Stone later. "Mr. Adair started business with one apprentice and six printers, including himself. "His type supply was 150 pounds of minion, 150 pounds of agate, and 15 fonts of display head letters. "Now in that same office 50 years later, he has, he doesn't know how many tons of metal, used over and over in the linotype machines. 25 regular men, with 123 extra men employed much of the time. "He likes the office, likes the work, but says: 'I mean to walk out; I won't intend to be carried out; and I want to get to California, and to live.'

Sees Only California. "A California on the train asked Mr. Adair about Florida. "Florida," says he. "Don't talk to me about Florida. There is only one place in the world to live in, when you are able to get there and live decently, and that is California. "In three or four months, after he finishes his 50 straight years on one job without a sign of a strike in the 50 years among the men under him, Mr. Adair will move into his finished house near Orange.

SEATTLE, Wn., Oct. 6.—Stretched across a single bed, the dead bodies of two young men and two girls were found in a hotel at Renton, yesterday. An open gas jet was the cause of the tragedy. Dr. Adolph Bronck, deputy coroner, said the affair seemed to have been an accident.

The men were R. E. Samson, 22, Renton, Wn., and William L. Holmes, 22, Kennewick, Wn. The two girls, about 17 years old, have not been identified, but relatives of two missing girls from North Bend have been called in an effort to establish identity of the bodies.

SANTA ANA, CALIFORNIA, TUESDAY, OCTOBER 6, 1925

WASHINGTON, PITTSBURGH CLASH TOMORROW
Al Clayes, Backfield Ace, Returns To J. C.BROKEN FIELD.
RUNNING STAR
AGAIN IN FOLD

Theole, Harkleroad Due to Report Tomorrow; Locals Play U. S. C. Frosh

Al Clayes, veteran quarterback and one of the most spectacular broken field runners that ever dug a cleated shoe in the green-sard at Poly field, parked a load of books under his arm and returned to the Santa Ana junior college today to again battle in the "Jay-Cee" football ranks.

The return of the sensational Clayes, who has been attending Occidental college, was only one of many interesting developments of the day.

Coincidentally with Clayes' appearance on the campus, "Barney" Theole, crack tackle of the 1924 junior college eleven, and Harry Harkleroad, star linesman and halfback at Tustin high school for the past two seasons, announced their intention to matriculate and join the college squad today.

Couch Graham Harris is humming a merry tune over the new developments. He has a match arranged against the freshmen team of the University of Southern California here Wednesday, October 21 and he is virtually assured of a match at Palo Alto against the Stanford yearlings late in October.

All the strength available will be called in action in these games so Coach Harris is strenuously drilling his men. Last night was too muddy for practice so the team was given a chalk talk, but during the rest of the week the squad is to be pushed.

The Anaheim high school team will be met in a game to be played there tomorrow afternoon. Clayes is an Anaheim boy and he may aid in giving his alma mater a defeat.

In a check on Clayes' eligibility made yesterday, it was discovered that he wouldn't be able to play in league games. However, Coach Harris intends to send him in practice clashes. Harris is counting much on Clayes in the games with the Stanford and U. S. C. freshmen teams.

Clayes decided to enroll here when he found that he would be ineligible to play with Occidental in conference matches. He had won a place on the varsity backfield but his credentials were short one unit.

Clayes probably will go into action against the freshman team of the University of California, Southern Branch, in the curtain-raiser to the Branch-Pomona varsity tilt in Los Angeles next Saturday.

Next week the junior college team engages in its first league encounter against Pasadena Wednesday. The game is to be played here at 3 o'clock.

Weak points in the attack of the local aggregation as shown in the game against Loyola last Saturday are being corrected by Mentor Harris. He said today that he plans to have two sets of backfield men. His regulars will probably be Herbert Ebersole, fullback; Blanchard Beatty and Adnelo McLane, halfbacks; and Dan Cook, quarter.

The second set of backs is likely to include Bill Young at fullback; John Lutz and James Smith at halfbacks. Clayes, of course, will be used whenever possible.

Stress is to be placed on developing a fighting offense and strengthening the bad holes in the line this week. Theole is expected to fit in one of the tackle positions and Harkleroad may be placed at guard. With the new recruits, Coach Harris now has about 25 men from which to draw material for his eleven.

FARRELL PICKS SOLONS TO BAG DIAMOND TITLE

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—After considering the relative pitching, fielding and batting strength of the principals in the world's series beginning tomorrow, and the mental morale of the two champions, it is our guess that the Washington Senators will win the series from the Pittsburgh Pirates.

It is only a guess and it is no better than the opinion of any one who thinks and is willing to wager that the flashy Pittsburgh club will defeat the Washington veterans.

The Pirates are considered stronger than the Senators because of more quality of good pitching, heavier hitting from eight men in the lineup who are 300 or better and greater speed about but a close analysis of the figures will show that these advantages are not so heavy.

Coming into the last stretch the Pirates were leading the National league in team batting with an average of .306 but the Senators were leading the American league with a mark of .305. The Pirates had stolen 142 bases and the veteran Senators had stolen 132. There isn't any great difference in those figures.

When it comes to pitching it does seem that the Pirates have more good pitchers than the Senators but the Pirate staff isn't as flexible as the Washington staff and no manager in baseball can handle and mix up his pitchers as well as young Bucky Harris did in the series last year.

Harris, in beating the Giants last year, knew almost exactly how many innings his pitchers were good for and he made his plans accordingly. He had in Marberry—and he still has in him—the greatest relief pitcher in baseball and he ought to be of invaluable service again this year.

"Money Playing." The most important factor in a series where there is so much money at stake to the individual players is experience. Ball players call this experience "money playing" and in this respect the Senators have a tremendous advantage over the National league champions.

The difference between the winners and the losers share in the world's series last year was more than $2,000 to each player and it ought to be just as much this year. Every ball hit in the series will be tagged with $2,000 and the Pirates will think more of that than the Senators, who have been through one terrific series and two hard pennant races.

An Junior Chamber of Commerce, Paul Gilbert, captain; Besser's Toggery, Frank Besser, captain; Swift's Premiums, Dan Holland, captain; Orange County Title company, George Parker, captain; Santa Ana council, Knights of Columbus, Engleman, captain; Robertson's Radiolians, Fred Robertson, captain; Southern California Edison company, George Mull, captain; Edison company, G. G. Klammer, captain; J. Schroeder, captain and the Richmond Oil company, Hal, captain.

All games will be played under rules of the Pacific Coast Bowling Congress and the limit to team average will be 835.

Series Rivals Compared

BY BILLY EVANS

(In this series of articles which will appear in The Register from day to day, Billy Evans, for the last 20 years an umpire in the American league, compares the Washington and Pittsburgh teams which meet for the baseball championship in the series this season.)

Two brilliant shortstops are possibilities for the world series, Roger Peckinpaugh of Washington and Glenn Wright of Pittsburgh. Roger Peckinpaugh is unquestionably one of the greatest shortstops the game has ever produced. He bats and throws right-handed.

As a money player, Peckinpaugh is without a superior in the majors. He is par excellence in the field and, while not a great batsman, is decidedly dangerous, best in the pinch.

Peckinpaugh is not fast, yet no infielder in the game, not even Frisch, the "Flash," covers more ground. Peck seems to know every hitter, is always moving with the pitch and makes the most difficult plays look easy.

Peck isn't a .300 hitter. He has certain weaknesses but American league pitchers have the greatest respect for him in the pinch.

Some idea of Peck's value to the Washington club can be gleaned from the fact that he is certain to receive serious consideration for the honor of being voted the most valuable player in the American league.

Glenn Wright of Pittsburgh is a master shortstop. He bats and throws right-handed. He is a big, rangy fellow, very fast, covers much ground and his wonderful arm enables him to put the finishing touch to seemingly impossible plays.

At the bat Wright has a slight edge on Peck. Wright gets more distance to his drives than Peck, yet I doubt if he is of more value when a timely hit is needed.

There is little to choose between Peckinpaugh and Wright. They are the two outstanding shortstops of the year. Both have been endowed by nature with remarkable ability; Wright has the youth, Peck the experience.

A draw would be a popular decision, but I lean to Peckinpaugh.

Some real class is booked for display in left field.

Washington begs to present the great "Goose" Goslin. Pittsburgh offers the youthful and brilliant Cuyler.

Last season Goslin was the big threat of the Washington club at the bat, the Babe Ruth of the Senators. His home run hitting featured the winning of the 1924 world series.

Goslin bats left and throws right-handed. He takes a terrific cut at the ball and gets great distance to his drives. He may look foolish on a certain ball and on the next pitch crack the same style delivery over the fence.

Weakness in the field retarded Goslin in his climb to stardom. One couldn't class him as a Speaker at present but he has made rapid strides forward afield. Lacks grace but he can get them. He has a strong arm.

Goslin is a player who looms as a constant menace to the opposition.

To combat the efficiency of Goslin, Pittsburgh offers Hazen Cuyler, the sensation of last year in the majors, who has proved he wasn't a mere flash by repeating.

Cuyler bats and throws right-handed. He's a great hitter. Like Goslin, he is the threat of the Pirates. Cuyler, although built on rather sturdy lines, is very fast. He is a better baserunner than Goslin and in the field has an edge on the Washington star.

Being familiar with Goslin's remarkable ability, I am inclined to place these two stars on a par. A cold analysis of the skill of the two in various departments, however, would give Cuyler a slight edge.

While the definite lineup of the two teams is in doubt, it is probable that Barnhart will start in left field and Cuyler will appear in right for Pittsburgh.

Pitted against Rice, who is playing in top form, Cuyler would be entitled to the edge on his remarkable showing the past season. A comparison between Goslin and Barnhart gives the Washington star a much wider margin than Cuyler enjoys over Rice.

BOWLING

Santa Ana's two Southern California league bowling teams, the Broadway Academy All-Stars and the Oldsmobile Six company, clash at the Broadway academy here tonight. The league opens their final and the teams are doing their final prepping for the big title campaign.

Tentative lineups include Bill Karam, Harry Schwartz, Walde Andersen, E. A. Mitchell and Bill Bird for the Broadway squad and Moose Ames, S. Harrison, "Stompy" Gordon, Penny Jones and Charlie Zimmer for the A. and B. alleys quintette.

With Horace Snow pounding the woodpile for a 525 series, The Register Mercantile league team defeated the O. A. Haley Inc. quintette by 21 pins in a match game at the A. and B. alleys last night. Snow's 232 was high game. The scores:

PITTSBURGH IN DECIDE COUNTY GALA DRESS ON PUBLIC COURSE EVE OF SERIES TITLES SUNDAY

BY BILLY EVANS

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Oct. 6.—Amidst the smoke from the battle, Pittsburgh, heir of the pennant winning Pirates, took on the air of a real world's series town today.

There was pep in the step of pedestrians, mounted police who will handle the crowds at Forbes' field tomorrow, pranced in practice, ticket scalpers' offices opened down town and carpenters banged the last nail into the additional stands of new pine which will seat the farthest removed of 45,000 spectators on the morrow.

A red sun burned its way through the murky haze, with promise of fair weather for the opening game, despite the weather man's fear of possible showers. There seemed little reason to doubt that the oldest inhabitants' prediction of fair and warmer would be fulfilled.

Out at Squirrel Hill, the Washington Senators, who had been permitted by Manager "Bucky" Harris to bring their wives and families to the big series, loafed throughout the morning, awaiting their turn to practice on the smoothly manicured greensward of Forbes field.

The first outburst of dissatisfaction with arrangements for the series came from the Washington club this morning.

The Senators were housed in the more or less exclusive Morrow Field Apartments. Complaints over the limited accommodations, rapid removal of the diminutive outfielder who had to share a bed with the elongated "Goose" Goslin to the growls of another player who brought his wife along and found they were sharing an apartment with four single Senators.

But this was easily remedied, once the hospitable "Barney" Dreyfuss, president of the Pittsburgh club, learned of the difficulties.

Undaunted by the fact that they are entertaining world's champions, the Corsairs took the field in final secret practice, preparing the plays with which they hope to make their visitors walk the plank.

Down town, the ticket speculators, with agents of the internal revenue bureau on hand to see that Uncle Sam gets his 50 per cent of the profits, were ready to treat prospective customers in similar fashion.

Hotel clerks throughout the city drooped incessantly:

"No, no, sir. No ma'am; no rooms to be had."

Many a butter and egg salesman turned away disconsolately, or turned in thankfully upon a pool table, glad at least the shelter of a roof in this town that has suddenly gone baseball mad.

In the lobbies one would begin to distinguish famous characters associated with baseball and its spectacular climax, the world's series.

Magnates, statesmen, movie actors and actresses and celebrated gate crashers strided and posed and talked wisely and sometimes too well of the coming struggle.

Young Mr. McKechie is one of the few big league managers who ever piloted a pennant winner in his own home town. The Pirate manager is a Pittsburgh boy, who broke into the game around the local sand lots—and, unlike a prophet, is a hero to the home folks.

BIG TEAMS IN FIRST GAME OF WORLD SERIES

Harris Selects Johnson to Pitch First Game; Bucs' Choice Still Indefinite

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—Probable rain for the opening game of the world's series in Pittsburgh tomorrow was predicted by the United States weather bureau today.

The official forecast for western Pennsylvania was: "Showers tonight and Wednesday. Warmer in south portion tonight. Cooler Wednesday and Wednesday night."

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Oct. 6.—After waiting 16 years, with patience and long suffering, Pittsburgh was back into its own today, a contender in the annual world's series, the classic of baseball.

Only the older generation of fans remembered the series of 1909 when Fred Clark's Pirates won the championship from Hughie Jennings' Detroit Tigers and those who have come to know baseball in the recent years when Pittsburgh was losing pennants in the last hard quarter of the race entered into the festivities with all the fervor and enthusiasm of a college freshman.

Merchants contested to see how big and how many pictures of the Pirates they could decorate their windows with and there were a profusion of orange and black pennants bearing the name of the new heroes.

The color scheme was mindful of Princeton on a "big three" football game and the general interest and spirit of the traffic cops, the bell boys and sober minded business men brought back the days of 1919 when Cincinnati was going crazy about its first pennant winner.

You would think that Pittsburgh never had been allowed to see a world's series in its own backyard, but, as the citizens are wont to remind you, it has been a long time since 1909.

Sensors in Seclusion "Bucky" Harris, the youngest manager in captivity, led his world's champion Washington team into town last night and took the players out to a fashionable suburban hotel to keep his veterans away from the storm and strife of the city.

"We're all in good shape," Harris said. "I'm going to play. Peck is going to pitch the second game. Those stories about our many disabilities did not come from me. I don't believe in bear stories."

Bill McKechie, manager of the Pirates, was one of the early visitors at the hotel where the Washington club is stopping.

"We'll work out this morning and you can have the ball park all afternoon," he told Harris. "There will be no one to bother you but the carpenters."

There was plenty of hammering and sawing and knocking at Forbes field, where the carpenters were putting the last raps in on a temporary bleacher section in center field that was made necessary by the tremendous demand for tickets. The players didn't bother the Senators, however, as they went through the same session last year when their boss was building extra stands to take care of his customers and increase the gate.

Johnson To Pitch Harris repeated the announcement that Walter Johnson, the veteran hero of the Washington staff, would pitch the first game and that Coveleskie would get the call in the second game.

"After that," he said, "it all depends. Ferguson may be slipped in there almost any place and I'll bet you that he shows you a ball game."

Bill McKechie said his choice for the opening game depended entirely on the weather. Aldridge and Kremer are ready to go and I can't name the pitcher until I look them over before the game," he said.

Eddie Moore, the star second baseman of the Pirates, was said to have a bad finger which he hurt in Cincinnati, and Thompson, a rookie, may have to play in his place. Young plaid one of the greatest money playing utilities in the game is on the bench with a broken ankle and cannot do his famous stuff.

To listen to the talk here a neutral would think the series was over and that Washington hadn't scored a run in any game. But there was very little money to back up the conversation. The odds were 6 to 5 on the home club but money was scarce.

SANTA ANA MAN TO ATTEND WASHINGTON SESSIONS OF NATIONAL Y.M.C.A. GROUP

O. H. Barr, of Santa Ana; W. E. Kier, of San Diego; and Robert H. Gossom, of Long Beach, are the three representatives of Southern California who will attend the meeting of the national council of the Y. M. C. A. in Washington, D. C., the latter part of this month. It was learned today from Ralph C. Smedley, general secretary of the Santa Ana Y. M. C. A.

The three men are planning to remain also for the great international convention, to be held in the same city, Smedley added.

Coolidge Will Speak
President Coolidge's acceptance of an invitation to address the opening session of the international convention of the Young Men's Christian association in Washington, Smedley explained, recalls two previous conventions which were held at the capital, one in 1871 and the other in 1907, at which Presidents Grant and Roosevelt, respectively, welcomed and received the delegates. It recalls also the hearty support accorded the association movement by President Hayes, Garfield, Cleveland, Harrison, McKinley, Taft, Wilson and Harding.

During the Civil war, when the army and navy work was carried on under the name of the United States Christian commission, President Lincoln personally contributed to a plate collection of $25,000, which was taken upon the battle of the Wilderness. Benjamin Harrison, when ex-president, addressed the international convention held in Indianapolis, in 1893, and expressed his approval of the work.

McKinley Was Supporter
President McKinley was a strong supporter of the association. Of the army work, he said: "The great central organization always has stood for right living, and it is a pleasure to me to commend any extension of it and to wish it success. I am glad to know of the efforts that are being made to bring the ennobling influence more and more within the reach of our soldiers and sailors."

Theodore Roosevelt, during his public life, addressed many Y. M. C. A. gatherings and paid tribute to the association, both in its civil and military phases. "I am a strong believer in the Y. M. C. A., for the Y. M. C. A. builds up good citizens," he once said. When assistant secretary of the navy, he declared, before an association meeting: "I stand so strongly for the Y. M. C. A. because it encourages the development of many attributes. I stand strongly for it because it emphasizes ideals, and without ideals there is no hope for a country."

William Howard Taft also has long been an active supporter of the association. As president, he especially was interested in a world-wide application of Y. M. C. A. ideals, and in 1910, when invited to address the conference on the world-wide expansion of the association, he tendered the East Room of the White House for the meeting hour, after returning from a vacation, to participate. After the World war, he served as chairman of the editorial board, which compiled the association's war history, "Service With Fighting Men."

Woodrow Wilson once said: "You can test the modern community by the degree of its interest in its Young Men's Christian association." While president of Princeton he commended the student work of the association, and later, during the trying years of the war, he characterized its war activity "a means of moral sanitation."

President Harding gave the association his "unqualified approval" and wrote of it: "Whether in peace or war, in our country or under foreign skies, the Young Men's Christian association has been at the front of activities in behalf of the truest public interest." October 24 will not be the only occasion on which Calvin Coolidge has addressed an important association conference. One notable event was his speech before the New York state convocation, in Albany, in 1923. "The value of the work of the Y. M. C. A. cannot be over estimated. It always is timely, in peace and in war. It is entitled to universal support."

Sailors Waiting For Death Saved On Becalmed Sea

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 6.—As five "painted ships upon a painted ocean," two becalmed vessels near Jamaica held 40 men prisoners while they waited to die from thirst, according to the story told here.

Capt. Henry A. T. Candy, of the Panama-Pacific steamer Mongolia, in port here, told of sighting the vessels, the Amaranthe and the Wemby, and seeing their distress signals.

Sails spread horizontally to catch rain had failed because there was no rain, the men, unshaven and ragged as "The Ancient Mariner," reported.

Candy left water and supplies to last through many days of calm seas and continued to this port.

In How Many Beds Did Napoleon Die?

PARIS, Oct. 6.—In how many beds did Napoleon die? Guaranteed authentic beds in which the emperor departed this life are almost as plentiful as the famous skulls of Henry IV, of which there are known to be seven, kept in different museums.

The question arose several days ago when, during a public sale of antiques at Deauville, a brass bed of the Empire period was offered as "Napoleon's deathbed from St. Helena." There had already been three such beds listed in official catalogues.

The custodian of the Napoleonic museum at Malmaison insists that none of the four is the authentic bed, for he claims it is actually in the possession of Prince Murat, a descendant of the emperor, and is found in the Murat chateau, at Chambly.

BOY SCOUTS' CORNER

ANAHEIM BOYS HOLD MEETING WITH LEADER

The scout executive in his bi-monthly visit to Anaheim Troop No. 1 was most pleasantly surprised in the way this troop was being conducted under the joint leadership of John E. McKim, scoutmaster, and William H. Reed, assistant scoutmaster.

The first thing that strikes one upon entering the room where they meet, which is located in the basement of the Intermediate School of Anaheim, is the way the corners have been partitioned off. Each of the patrols has a corner and has built a little bamboo hut where it can hold its patrol meetings. The meeting starts promptly on schedule and is of such interest that he found all of the fellows on their toes and ready for more when the evening's program was brought to a close.

A former member of the troop, Robert Jensen, provided a very interesting part of the program with a talk concerning his visit to Denmark this summer. He saw lots of Scouts and was struck by the similarity of the Scout program everywhere.

Scoutmasters Meeting.
County scoutmasters are to meet at headquarters tonight at 7:45 o'clock for the purpose of discussing a number of events coming on the scouting program soon. Representatives from every troop in the county are expected at this meeting which is the first of the season.

Quarterly Rally.
The quarterly rally, which was scheduled for Friday, October 9, has been definitely called off and a Halloween party scheduled to take the place of it at Orange County headquarters is geared up ready for full speed in making this the big kick-off activity of a very busy scout winter.

Scoutmasters Needed.
In view of the need of new scoutmasters a special round up program is being planned by the district committee for Santa Ana.

For Croup and Colds

Over 98 million jars of Vicks have been used in the past five years. This means the unbroken confidence of a vast army of mothers. They like Vicks because it solves a great problem—how to treat croup and colds without that continual dosing, which is so harmful to delicate little stomachs. Being applied externally Vicks does not disturb the digestion. It can be freely used without the slightest harmful effect.

Vicks brings prompt relief from croup and often checks even the worst cold overnight. There is nothing to swallow. You just rub it on.

COUNTY BOARD OF BOY SCOUTS HOLDS MEETING

The Boy Scouts' County Executive board met for its first fall session at Anaheim a few days ago and mapped out some intensive scout activities for the coming months.

Dr. M. A. Patton, H. B. Van Dien and Waldo O'Kelly were named on a committee to cooperate with the 40 and 8 of the American Legion, in putting on a big jamboree late in the spring for the purpose of raising funds with which to build a dancing hall at camp.

The board also passed the following resolution in recognition of the services rendered by Victor E. Teaney who has been transferred to Ventura county as executive:

WHEREAS, Victor E. Teaney, who has served as Field Executive of Orange County council during the past four years, has been called to another field as executive, and

WHEREAS, Victor E. Teaney has served loyally and faithfully the Orange County Council, Boy Scouts of America during his entire period of service.

NOW THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED that we, the board of directors of the Orange County council, Boy Scouts of America, do hereby unanimously express our appreciation for the splendid unselfish service rendered in the interest of boyhood throughout Orange County during this period of service and commend Victor E. Teaney most highly to the field to which he has been called, and that we, on behalf of the boyhood of Orange County wish it known that a great deal of credit for the building up of our organization rests on the shoulders of Victor E. Teaney.

BAKING COMPANY MERGER PROBED

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—A private inquiry is being made by attorneys of the justice department to determine whether the $400,000 baking company merger of the General Baking Corporation comes within the Sherman anti-trust act.

It will require a week or more to complete the inquiry, officials said. Similar inquiries are usually made of all big mergers, it was pointed out.

The merger will make the General Baking Corporation the largest baking concern in the world, with 157 plants distributed over the country.

"DRESS WELL AND SUCCEED"

Only The Tramp Or Millionaire
Can Afford To Declare,
"I Don't Care!"

THERE are but two types of men who may disregard correct dress—the tramp, who has no place in the whole world to go, and the millionaire who can tell the whole world to go to some place. The rest of us who have jobs to keep; friends to win; opportunities to uncover and advancement, whether personal, social, commercial or professional, to look forward to, must pay attention to what we wear if we expect our fellow-men to pay attention to the wearer. This Fall, fall in line with "the Ninety-and-Nine", who are making Americans the best-dressed nation in the world, and make this your creed—

"Dress Well And Succeed"

Lemon Removes Lines, Wrinkles

LEGION MEETING ADDRESSED BY PRES. COOLIDGE

as accidental and unessential. We shall have to look beyond the outward manifestations of race and creed. Divine Providence has not bestowed upon any race a monopoly of patriotism and character.

The same principle that it is necessary to apply to the attitude of mind among our own people it is also necessary to apply to the attitude of mind among the different nations. During the war we were required not only to put a strong emphasis on our own national pride but an equally strong emphasis on that which tended to disparage other peoples. There was an intensive cultivation of animosities and hatreds and enmities, together with a blind appeal to force that took possession of substantially all the peoples of the earth. Of course, these ministered to the war spirit.

They supplied the incentive for destruction, the motive for conquest. But in time of peace such sentiments are not helpful hindrances; they are not constructive. The generally expressed desire of "America first" can not be criticized. It is a perfectly correct aspiration for our people to cherish. But the problem which we have to solve is how to make America first. It can not be done by the cultivation of national bigotry, arrogance, or selfishness. Hatreds, jealousies, and suspicions will not be productive of any benefits in this direction. Here again we must apply the rule of toleration. Because there are other peoples whose ways are not our ways, and whose thoughts are not our thoughts, we are not warranted in drawing the conclusion that they are adding nothing to the sum of civilization. We can make little contribution to the welfare of humanity on the theory that we are a superior people and all others are an inferior people. We do not need to be too loud in the assertion of our own righteousness. It is true that we live under most favorable circumstances. But before we come to the final and irrevocable decision that we are better than everybody else we need to consider what we might do if we had their provocations and their difficulties. We are not likely to improve our own condition or help humanity very much until we come to the sympathetic understanding that human nature is about the same everywhere, that it is rather evenly distributed over the surface of the earth, and that we are all united in a common brotherhood. We can only make America first in the true sense which that means by cultivating a spirit of friendship and good will, by the exercise of the virtues of patience and forbearance, by being "plentiful in mercy," and through progress at home and helpfulness abroad standing as an example of real service to humanity.

It is for these reasons that it seems clear that the results of the war will be lost and we shall only be entering a period of preparation for another conflict unless we can demolish the racial antagonisms, fears, hatreds, and suspicions, and create an attitude of toleration in the public mind of the peoples of the earth. If our country is to have any position of leadership, I trust it may be in that direction, and I believe that the place where it should begin is at home. Let us cast off our hatreds. Let us candidly accept our treaties and our natural obligations of peace. We know and everyone knows that these old systems, antagonisms and reliance on force have failed. If the world has made any progress, it has been the result of the development of other ideals. If we are to maintain and perfect our own civilization, if we are to be of any benefit to the rest of mankind, we must turn aside from the thoughts of destruction and cultivate the thoughts of construction. We can not place our main reliance upon material forces. We must reaffirm and reinforce our ancient faith in truth and justice, in charity and tolerance. We must make our supreme commitment to the everlasting spiritual forces of life. We must mobilize the conscience of mankind.

Your gatherings are a living testimony of a determination to support these principles. It would be impossible to come into this presence, which is a symbol of more than 300 years of our advancing civilization, which represents to such a degree the hope of our consecrated living and the prayers of our hallowed dead, without a firmer conviction of the deep and abiding purpose of our country to live in accordance with this vision. There have been and will be lapses and discouragement, surface storms and disturbances. The shallows will murmur, but the deep is still. We shall be made aware of the boisterous and turbulent forces of evil about us seeking the things which are temporal. But we shall also be made aware of the still small voice arising from the fireside of every devoted home in the land seeking the things which are eternal. To such a country, to such a cause, the American Legion has dedicated itself. Up on this rock you stand for the service of humanity. Against it no power can prevail.

Fig Tract May Change Hands

FRESNO, Oct. 6.—One of the largest real estate deals of the year is expected to be consummated here this week, when more than 10,000 acres of the J. C. Forkner fig gardens, declared to be the largest fig tract in the world, passes into the hands of Glendale interests. About one million dollars is involved. Forkner admitted that negotiations were being carried on but said that nothing had yet been signed.

NEWS from ORANGE COUNTY

HIGH SEAS AT BALBOA CAUSE HEAVY DAMAGE

BALBOA, Oct. 6.—Damage estimated at several thousand dollars was done yesterday when high seas broke over the wooden bulkhead erected by the Blankenhorn company along the ocean front, and washed away a large portion of the bulkhead, and destroyed sidewalks and streets.

Huge breakers coming in on a high tide were responsible for the havoc. The breakers, according to reports, were nearly 20 feet high. No further damage was done last night, according to information from the beach this morning.

Workmen were today repairing the bulkhead and making ready to replace concrete streets, sidewalks and curbing which were broken when the water undermined the sand along the ocean front.

At times, the breakwater was completely hidden from view, according to witnesses. The breakers in some instances swept over the point of land near the base of the breakwater.

This is the third time that high seas have caused damage in this section. According to the Blankenhorn interests, damage this year was no greater than on previous occasions when the seas have washed upon the property. It is expected that following temporary repairs, steps will be taken to erect a larger and stronger bulkhead.

GAS CONTRACT CAUSES WORRY TO TRUSTEES

HUNTINGTON BEACH, Oct. 6.—This city is confronted with the possibility of being without a gas supply unless it fulfills the request recently made with the Southern Counties Gas company. It was declared last night at the regular meeting of the city board of trustees.

The city signed a contract with the Southern Counties Gas company some time ago to purchase gas. The contract established a flat rate for the gas. Following the signing of the contract, the Southern Counties company submitted it to the state railroad commission for approval.

The railroad commission has refused to give its sanction to the contract unless a clause, which will permit the railroad commission to change the rate if the commission deems it necessary, is inserted in the contract.

The city trustees instructed City Attorney L. W. Blodgett to investigate the request of the Southern Counties Gas company and the railroad commission and find out what is the matter with the present rate, and just why the clause must be inserted.

But the fact remains that unless they do insert the clause, the gas company will be forced to drop the contract and the city will be without gas.

3 WALNUT CARS LEAVE FOR EAST

FULLERTON, Oct. 6.—Eleven cars of walnuts have already been shipped by the Fullerton-Placentia Walnut association, three cars having started east today, according to Arthur Staley, secretary-treasurer-manager of the association.

About one-third of the entire crop is now in the packing house, Mr. Staley stated. Last year, the harvest did not start until October 9. The fact that the season this year is earlier is an advantage, he believes, since it predicts an early winter.

The pool here probably will not close until November 20, but officials of the house expect that all of the crop will have been shipped long before that date.

ARE KEEPING ABREAST

With Santa Ana spending more than $100,000 for additional high school buildings, and the new Brea-Olinda High school district voting $320,000 bonds for the building of a high school, it does not look as though Orange county residents are the least bit down-hearted concerning the future of the county.

When any considerable portion of those living in a community or district get pessimistic, when they see everything in sight in a business way going to the dogs, when the future looks dark and uncertain, public expenditures are curtailed. "It's no time to spend money for schools," say the doubtful ones.

There is never a time when those who have cold water to throw on enterprise and optimism are not with us. If there is a season of unusual activity, they call it an "unhealthy boom that is sure to break and leave us flat;" if things slow up, it's "I told you so, and this is just the beginning of our hard times."

Those in charge of the schools of the county are not afflicted with fear of what's coming. They have seen Orange county develop, and they know that progress is inevitable. The schools, quicker than any institution in the county, show the result of increased population, and they respond to the spirit of progress in a community. Our school managers are building always for the future. Their work with children naturally gives them that turn of mind.

THE COMMUNITY FOUNDATION

The "community fund" is now an old story, accepted in principle as a good thing even by cities that have not yet put it in practice. The "community foundation" takes hold of the public mind more slowly, but is winning its way.

It originated in the mind of a lawyer-banker 11 years ago. He proved his sincerity and started the ball rolling by getting such a foundation incorporated in his city, and then willing his fortune to it, after his widow should have been cared for. Other wealthy citizens followed with gifts and bequests, until the original foundation has many millions, controlled by a permanent group of public-spirited citizens and available at their discretion for any form of public philanthropy.

Today 45 American cities have established similar foundations.

The peculiar value of such institutions is explained by the director of the New York Foundation, who received his training under the originator of the plan.

Often, he explains, gifts to charity and education have broken down because the donors tried to limit definitely the use to which their funds should be put, and could not guess what changes the future of charitable enterprises would bring. The letter of their wills has been carried out, but the spirit could not be.

"The community foundation permits that the spirit of a gift shall be interpreted in accordance with the needs of the times."

"From all the cases of money that has come under the spell of the 'dead hand,' which has become useless through the too rigid regulations placed upon it, there can be drawn this moral:

"Let the fiscal management of charitable funds be placed in the hands of experienced, responsible administrators, operating under the scrutiny of the state of national government.

"Let the social application of these funds be put in the care of specialized and permanently organized representatives, selected for their prudence and integrity.

"And a distributing agency having been chosen, let it be trusted with the discretion it requires to do effective work under circumstances no man can forecast.

"This does for the living what no one heretofore has done, and it does for the dead what they cannot do for themselves."

THE FRONTIER COLLEGE

One of the unique ways in which college education is being made available to a wider range of students is the "Frontier College" recently started in Canada. It has been described as "a university in overalls."

Now that it is really in operation, its activities are attracting widespread interest. A Toronto newspaper says of this remarkable institution:

"It transfers the college from the conventional walls in which it has long been confined to anywhere on the frontier or hinterland—in tent, log building, box car, shack, farm or factory, where a student alone, or with a teacher, grapples with work of university grade. It puts a premium not on learning within academic halls, as its older sisters are wont to do, but on scholarship at the ends of the earth; on scholarship plus altruism, and more wonderful still, plus manual labor."

The ideals seem to coincide with those of the extension department of the University of California, concerning which many of the Register's readers are informed.

The opportunity for instruction along these lines is as wide as the world. Modern means of communication, particularly the radio, should facilitate its work.

This is but the latest of many evidences that "higher education" is getting down to a common level, that special educational opportunity is becoming general, that culture, once an aristocratic possession, is turning democratic.

CRAWLING AMERICANS

Do Americans really hustle? A transportation survey in Washington shows that of those whose trips to and from work are two miles or less, the walkers average 3.7 miles per hour, the street car riders 4.1 miles, the motor bus riders 4.5 miles and the automobilists 5.7 miles.

This is mere crawling. And the longer-distance people do not do much better. Of those traveling from two to six miles, the average speed is 7.2 miles an hour for the street car passengers, 7.5 miles for the motor bus passengers and 10.6 miles for the automobilists.

automobile passengers. For such vast distances, it appears, there are no walkers.

If that is the best the various types of vehicular transportation can do, almost anybody had better walk. By moving at just a little brisker pace, the pedestrian may beat the trolley car or bus or automobile, saving his fare and incidentally saving doctor bills—unless a car bumps into him.

A woman reached for her glasses, while driving an automobile out on the Beaumont road, the other day, lost control of her car, and was the victim of an accident. Most of the accidents to people in motor cars come through just a moment of inattention. The driver looks across country for an instant, or "reaches for her glasses," or gives his or her attention to something else than the car, and the wreck occurs. It is hard to realize the danger of just a second's inattention. It is just a few feet off the road, and the car gets beyond control. Eternal vigilance is not only the price of liberty, but of life, when one is piloting a motor car.—Redlands Facts.

PRETTY FACE DEPENDS UPON GOOD HEALTH
A good complexion depends in great measure upon two conditions, an active circulation and a clear skin.

Beauty is more than skin deep because the clearness of your skin depends to a large extent upon the completeness with which wastes are eliminated from your body.

If your liver, your intestines or your kidneys as well as the skin are not working effectively, that is, if these organs do not remove the wastes of the body promptly your skin is apt to be blotched and yellow and often covered with eruptions.

Many people make the mistake of thinking that the care of the face can be accomplished by merely taking care of the face. They do not realize that proper care of the face consists primarily of taking proper care of the body as a whole, care of the inside as well as the outside of the body. Your face is often an outward indication of the condition of your body.

Fresh air, ventilation, exercise, the care of the skin of the body, mental vigor, a sound diet, together with correct posture, are necessary factors in producing a healthy skin and are, therefore, factors which must be considered by those who are ambitious to keep the skin in a state of perfection.

You should know that a great many of the abnormal conditions of the skin of the face are in reality not diseases at all.

Many of these skin diseases, like headaches, are merely symptoms of disease or symptoms of disorders, in some part of the body. Oftentimes distressing skin conditions are due to disorder in some organ of the body quite remote and unsuspected.

Faulty diet is one of the common causes for an unhealthy condition of the skin. A lack of fresh air, due to insufficient breathing is another cause of unhealthy skin conditions.

There are, however, some skin troubles which are not due to disorders in deeper parts of the body, or to a lack of fresh air or failure on the part of some organ of the body to function properly in its capacity as an eliminator of waste. These so-called local skin conditions are as a rule the result either of poor circulation in the circulatory system of the head and face or they are due to infection.

Dirt carried by the air may also infect the skin of the face.

As in the case of the hair, so in the case of the skin, the oil preserves the skin. While this film of oil protects the face under normal conditions, it also acts to a certain extent as a "catch-all" for dust and disease germs blown about by the air.

Sometimes these germs may be so active and vigorous as to produce an infection of the skin almost immediately. Usually, however, this does not happen. With this fact in mind it should be obvious to all that frequent bathing of the skin and washing of the face is essential.

Most skins will submit to frequent washing without protest provided care is in the use of soap is exercised. In washing such a skin a generous amount of lather should be produced with a good soap. This should be thoroughly rubbed in and then as thoroughly washed out.

Cold water is not as good as lukewarm water for this purpose.

Cold water does, however, possess one advantage, it does increase the circulation of the blood in the skin.

The average healthy skin will permit a brisk and vigorous rubbing with a towel and such a rubbing will be helpful in producing a healthy skin condition.

The Poacher

Build and Let Build

Calaveras Prospect.

As far back as history begins, there have always been persons who have stood in the way of progress, some for reasons mercenary, others because of a real lack of vision or natural narrow tendencies.

It is a matter of record that the builders of the ancient cities and public monuments, some of which still exist were met by hundreds of obstacles placed in their way by visionless men, who did not have the future interests of their communities and the world at heart.

This same condition may be applied to our own community today. We see opposition to things which would expedite business or cause an economic improvement or would in humanity's sake afford protection against sickness or the killing of hundreds of motorists or pedestrians. Here there should be no room for the obstructionist. San Andreas is building pages of history and there should be nothing at this time to hamper its progress.

The truly great men of all time is the builder, the one who produces or helps to produce. The parasite, who does nothing for himself or fellowman is a cheat and the one who interferes with progress is little better. "Build and let build" should be our motto and the future will comfortably arrange itself. There are many things to be considered in the building up of a community. Ten men can do more than one and when these 10 men are arranged in team formation, their work can not only count much more than 10 times but, in fact 20 times as much.

Worth While Verse

TO THE FRINGED GENTIAN

Thou blossom bright with autumn dew,
And colored with the heaven's own blue,
That openest, when the quiet light
Succeeds the keen and frosty night.

Thou comest not when violets lean
O'er wandering brooks and springs unseen
Or columbines, in purple dressed,
Nod o'er the ground-bird's hidden nest.

Thou waitest late, and comest alone,
When woods are bare and birds are flown,
And frosts and shortening days portend
The aged year is near his end.

Then do thy sweet and quiet eye
Look through its fringes to the sky,
Blue—blue—as if that sky fell fall
A flower from its cerulean wall.

I would that thus, when I shall see
The hour of death draw near to me,
Hope, blossoming within my heart,
May look to heaven as I depart.

—William Cullen Bryant.

Are you of the brand that is always on hand to pick other people to pieces? The world's full of folks who make sarcastic jokes on others. The habit ne'er ceases.

How people get fun, out of razzing that's done, is something I can't understand. What queer brand of pleasure that comes in full measure when someone is constantly panned.

This habit, adhered to, when folks are referred to, can only be harmful at best. We shout that and this when a friend's gone amiss. Yea, we must get it off our chest.

It surely is so, and we all ought to know that there's nobody perfect, by far. The real type of friend is the one, in the end, who can praise folks, whatever they are.

Let's all put a halt to the finding of fault. Let's all try a plan that is new. Put knocks on the shelf—you'll be savin' yourself, for, how near to perfect are YOU?

"Time and Quiet"

By W. E. Allen, of La Jolla, California Biological Feature Service.

I have just spent a week in a hospital. In two neighboring beds were victims of a very serious automobile accident. They were two young fellows who had been there two weeks when I arrived and they had so far recovered from their flirtation with death as to be restless, while at the same time somewhat facetious and mildly philosophical. One of their standing jokes during the period of my acquaintance was the expression "time and quiet."

It seems that, in reply to one of their inquiries, the attending physician had told them that the essential requirements for recovery were "time and quiet." For young men accustomed to go and come at will, strangers to restraint, and anxious to be up and doing, such an expression appeared to be highly ridiculous. All of us are inclined to similar impatience in like circumstances, but, it is reasonable.

When an automobile is damaged we understand readily enough that it takes "time" for a mechanic to make the repairs, even when standard parts are available to replace those broken. We also know that this time is enormously extended if he is obliged to manufacture new parts in detail. It is no less evident that speed in repair depends on "quiet," i. e. lack of disturbance and interference. Repair is delayed if some one shakes or shifts the parts while being fitted or if the mechanic is forced to do other things while doing such particular work.

While the automobile is justly regarded as a highly complicated unit of machinery, it is exceedingly simple compared with the human body. Furthermore the body is automatic and it repairs itself. Instead, then of being disappointed at the slowness of repair we ought to be stupefied with astonishment that restitution occurs so speedily, so accurately, or at all.

Even in cases where standard parts can be found for restitution (e. g. skin for skin graft, bone for bone graft) the adjustment of these parts to the body requires the development of some new material and it must be automatic. In the simplest possible cases there must be manufacture and adjustment of at least three kinds of tissue, nerve, blood vessel and connective.

These must be made from raw materials and set up and put in operation while still more or less incomplete. Surely such repair takes time and it will be better done if undisturbed.

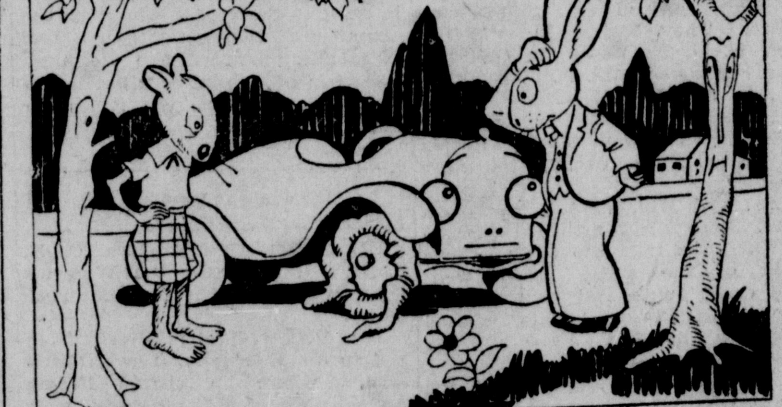

In case of a bad bruise, a large number of tissues are usually crushed, torn or disarranged. In some instances large portions of these are injured beyond repair and must be removed before effective replacement is possible. At any rate there must always be some removal of damaged material. Processes of repair may involve a dozen, or more, different kinds of tissue, but they must all make use of raw materials selected from the blood and automatically applied to the appropriate place and purpose. When open wounds and broken bones are even more remarkable for complexity. There is, then, still more need for "time and quiet." After all this is an excellent motto to observe when nature has work to do.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

by Olive Roberts Barton

NO. 14—MISTER BUNNY'S TROUBLES

"Yes, Mister Bunny," said the little squirrel boy up in the tree, "you needn't be frightened. Your car made that sound and you weren't shot at all."

"Well, I am certainly glad to hear it," said Mister Bunny fanning himself with his tail. "I guess I am extra nervous today. I jumped about a mile a little while ago when someone opened a bottle and it went 'pop!'"

"What makes you so nervous?" asked Scramble Squirrel curiously.

"My conscience, I suppose, mostly," said Mister Bunny. "You see, I just couldn't help slipping into the sass-patch garden this summer to nibble the green things growing there."

"Every time I went I kept saying over and over to myself, 'I'll be the last time I'll do this. I'll just have my fill of lettuce and greens and carrot tops today and maybe a few young peas. Tomorrow I won't come near. I'll eat plantain and grass and stuff that's free. That's what I will. Just today. That's all.'"

"What has that got to do with your conscience and your getting shot?" asked Scramble curiously.

"Don't say that word—please," shivered Mister Bunny. "I didn't stop, and neither did my children, and Mister Farmer didn't like us. Now whenever I hear a loud noise I shiver."

"I just saw me cracking a nut," laughed Scramble. "Did you think you were shot again, Mister Bunny?"

"Yes, I certainly did," said poor Mister Bunny. "I am nervous, I tell you."

Pretty soon he was on his way again, the little car rattling up the lane for dear life.

Mister Bunny felt that if he got home safely, that was where he was going to stay for the next hundred years.

"It's a good thing for me to stay at home anyway," he said. "A very good thing. I can save money. When I drive my automobile every day it costs money. Fifteen cents for gasoline one day, eight cents for oil another day, a dollar and a half for a new tire another day, and that's the way it keeps on. I'll save a lot of money by putting my car away until next spring. I can't use it much during the winter anyway, and I may as well—"

"Bang!"

This time the noise was so sharp and sudden and loud, that it sounded more like a cannon going off than a gun.

Mister Bunny hadn't time to faint or jump or anything like that, because the little automobile started to act like a Billy Goat with a bee on his back.

It jumped to one side of the road, then to the other and twisted and turned and hopped and dived, and it was all that Mister Bunny could do to hold it on the road at all.

"I'm not shot, but the car is," he was thinking rapidly. "I never thought anyone could be mean enough to shoot a car. It's done for, so it is!"

By this time the little automobile had stopped bucking, and the rabbit gentleman stopped it and got out.

"Geel! You have had a blow-out!" said Markie Muskrat, who was crossing from the creek to the pond to see his grandmother. "Your tire is ripped nearly off and it's twisted all around the wheel. I thought the whole world was blowing up."

"Come and help me fix it, will you, Markie?" said Mister Bunny, getting his spee in a hurry. He seemed very happy for a person having so much trouble, thought Markie, but he only said, "Sure!"

Pretty that Mister Bunny kept talking over and over to himself.

But this is what Mister Bunny was saying, "I'm an old man and have had many troubles—few of which ever happened."

He meant that it is foolish to worry over things that don't happen.
